Thompson Withdraws From Race

SENATE CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED WILLIS MOVES FOR HARMONY

Believes Withdrawal For Best Interests Of Republicans

CLEVELAND, June 26.—With a plea for united ranks among Ohio Republicans Col. Carmi A. Thompson's withdrawal as a candidate for the United States senate to fill the unexpired term of the late Frank B. Willis, was on record here today.

Thompson's formal withdrawal statement follows.

"In a talk I made before the Republican women of Ohio in Cleveland on June 2, I said 'whatever our preferences may be, whatever personal ambition we may have, let up keep in mind that the greatest good for the greatest number, depends on an overwhelming Republican victory in November'.

"The Republicans of Ohio have just emerged from a spirited primary contest which apparently left traces of bitterness in many places. A continuation of the strife on the foundation laid in the April primaries, can serve no useful purpose and may endanger party success in the fall election. For this reason, I have concluded to put aside my personal ambitions for something which I prize more highly—party harmony and party unity, and am therefore withdrawing from the race for senator to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Frank B. Willis.

"A united Republican party in this state in the November election means a successful Republican ticket for national, state and county offices and a continuation of the principles of the Republican party under which we have become the most prosperous people in the world."

SEVEN KILLED WHEN MEXICANS BLOW UP TRAIN

MEXICO CITY, June 26.—Federal troops were scouring the hills between Bernal and Queretaro today for a band of guerillas believed to have been responsible for the dynamiting of a train of the National Railways which resulted in the death of seven persons, one an American.

The American killed was Andrew Robinson, the locomotive engineer. The other victims were Mexicans. Twenty passengers were injured. The explosion derailed the locomotive, baggage car and two coaches.

Robinson had lived in Mexico thirty-five years. He was the only American employed as a locomotive engineer by the National Railways.

ELEVEN JURORS ARE PICKED FOR TRIAL

TOLEDO, O., June 26. — With eleven tentative jurors, eight women and three men, seated in the jury box, the trial of Charles J. Hoppe, 26, alleged self-confessed slayer of 7-year-old Dorothy Sielagowski, was to resume here today. The eleven prospective jurors were selected yesterday out of forty-five examined. Their acceptance, however, was only temporary and belief was expressed that many more in the panel would be called before opening addresses to the jury begin.

Rumors that the accused man would plead guilty and throw himself on the mercy of the court were dispelled at the close of yesterday's session when defense counsel announced that neither Hoppe, his wife nor brothers would consent to this move.

SENATOR REED WILL DEPEND ON FRIENDS

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—Sen. James A Reed will stake his hope of getting the Democratic presidential nomination solely on his friends and their ability to corral enough votes to "stop" Al Smith, and then to swing the pendulum toward a Reed victory.

"There is no likelihood that Senator Reed will take the floor of the convention and make a speech," one of his lieutenants declared emphatically today. "Of course, the Missouri delegation could arrange for him to have a seat in the convention, thus giving him an opportunity to address the delegates.

"The senator feels that it would not be a dignifed proceeding."

FIVE KILLED WHEN EXPLOSION WRECKS FIREWORKS FACTORY

THOMPSONVILLE, Conn., June 26—Five persons were killed, three of them children who were visiting there, when an explosion razed the plant of the New England Fireworks Company on Brainard Road, in the western outskirts of the town today.

None of the victims had been identified positively some hours after the explosion. Their bodies were blown to pieces by the force of the explosion.

Reports reaching here stated that a number of homes near the plant were wrecked and that trees and small buildings were blown down by the terrific blast.

The explosion, the cause of which was not known here, originated in a group of small wooden buildings on one side of the main buildings of the plant.

First reports said that three small boys and two men, all employees, were killed.

The injured were being cared for near the scene.

The countryside near the plant was covered with debris. Many windows in the homes of employees of the fireworks company were smashed by the air concussion, the report stated.

NOBILE DIRECTS SEARCH FOR COMPANIONS STILL IN ARCTIC

LONDON, June 26.—General Umberto Nobile, now safe aboard the Citta Di Milano at Virgo Bay, today held a conference with the pilots of the three seaplanes using the ship as a base, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Rome stated.

The commander of the dirigible Italia, which was lost while returning from the north pole, has thrown himself whole-heartedly into the task of rescuing the twenty men still marooned on the Arctic wastes.

He discussed with the pilots, one a Swede, the other two Italians, the feasibility of returning to his encampment with ski-equipped planes to rescue the four members of his party still marooned there, and the gallant Swedish flier Lundborg, who was forced to join their isolation when his plane, the Upland, overturned on his second trip to the encampment after he had rescued Nobile.

The motor chief of the ill-fated Italia, Natale Ceccioni, has also been rescued and is believed to be aboard the Citta Di Milano. He suffered a broken leg when the dirigible crashed on the morning of May 25.

General Nobile also discussed with the pilots his plans for the rescue of the ten other members of the dirigible's crew who were separated from his party. Three of these set out afoot over the ice-floes to search for aid. Nobile gave the pilots details of the route they planned to follow.

The other seven were carried aloft with the gas bag of the Italia when the crash occurred and were separated from the rest of the crew. Nobile described the direction the bag took before it disappeared from view.

ROME, June 25—There were indications today that the Italian government is not entirely pleased because Gen. Umberto Nobile allowed himself to be rescued first from the ice floe in the arctic. The government has sent a radiogram asking Gen. Nobile to forward immediately a report of the disaster to the Italia and the subsequent events including the rescue.

Contrary to Nobile's plan to assume direction of further rescue work the government announced that it will remain in charge of Commander Romagna of the supply ship Citta Di Milano.

STRATEGY TO CHECK PROHIBITION ROW BEFORE COMMITTEE

Attempt To Merge Radical Views In Compromisse Plank

By KENNETH CLARK
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—A new plan of strategy was evolved by Democratic platform drafters today to head off the threatened stormy row over the prohibition plank.

The idea is this:

Let the wets bring before the resolutions committee a dripping plank calling for modification of the Volstead law.

Let the militant drys counter with a proposal lauding the eighteenth amendment to the skies.

At this point, according to the scheme of those leaders who are seeking to make harmony, the watchword of the convention, both sides will be counselled to reconcile their divergent views through the adoption of a middle-of-the-road plank pledging the party to strict law enforcement.

The compromise plank, as suggested by Smith leaders, would condemn the Republican party for laxity in enforcing the eighteenth amendment and would place the Democrats on record as staunchly favoring the enforcement of all provisions of the constitution.

Further, it was represented as having the approval of Governor Smith. He is said to have suggested it to his leaders here through one of his closest friends and advisers.

Of course, the compromise may not deter the radical wets or drys from carrying a fight to the floor but its backers hope it will take the sting out of their fight.

That the southern drys, under the leadership of Gov. Dan Moody of Texas, are not going to be satisfied with anything less than an open endorsement of the eighteenth amendment was manifested after an early morning conference in Moody's headquarters. Attending were Senator Glass of Virginia, ex-Secretary of Navy Josephus Daniels of North Carolina and representatives of Tennessee and Florida.

The conferees approved a dry plank and selected Moody to wage the fight for it in the platform committee. The substance of the plan declared that the Democratic party endorses the eighteenth amendment and pledges itself to strict enforcement and observance of laws passed in pursuance there of. The fight for this plank will constitute the anti-Smith coalition's last ditch to stop the New York governor's nomination.

The short platform gospel has spread like wildfire among the leaders and Senator Walsh of Massachusetts announced he and Senator Caraway of Arkansas would submit a platform consisting of but twenty-two paragraphs. All the subjects except prohibition, farm relief, trusts and corruption will be covered in paragraphs of three sentences each.

Final work of dressing up the platform gets under way this afternoon with the first meeting of the platform committee. After an open session to hear proponents of various planks, a subcommittee probably will sit during the night, in the hope of getting the platform ready for the convention by tomorrow.

POMERENE PERMITS OHIO DELEGATES TO USE BEST JUDGMENT

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—Ex-Senator Pomerene of Ohio, "favorite son" presidential candidate, has virtually released the Ohio delegation from its pledge of support, it was learned today.

"We have a perfect understanding with Senator Pomerene," said H. G. Brunner, state chairman. "I talked with him about the entire situation and he said that he wished the delegation to use its best judgment.

"Ohio's entire vote, perhaps with one exception, will be cast for him on the first ballot. After that forty-five votes may go to Governor Smith."

The statement apparently disposed of rumor that most of the delegation would go to Smith on the first ballot and that Pomerene would officially withdraw. A caucus today may reveal some change in the line up.

Having completed its organization in record time, the Ohio delegation was represented as one of the most harmonious here—and determined to maintain harmony in the convention.

Ex-Secretary of War Newton D. Baker of Cleveland was named member of the resolutions committee. Others selected included: Chairman delegation, Claude Meeker; national committeeman, W. A. Julian (re-elected); committee woman, Bernice S. Pyke, (re-elected), member rules committee, J. Henry Goeke; credentials, Warren Gard; permanent organization, W. W. Durbin.

FARM BUREAU HEADS PRESENT PROPOSAL TO JOIN INTERESTS

East Opposed To Equalization Fee; Favor Wagner

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—A formal offer of an alliance between leaders of the "farm revolt" and Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York was taken under consideration by the Smith managers today.

The proposal, carefully framed by a score of farm organization heads, was presented by Ed A. O'Neal of Alabama and Chester H. Gray of Washington, both legislative representatives of the American Farm Bureau Federation. It was received by Judge Joseph F. Proskauer and George W. Van Namee, generalissimo of the Smith forces.

Nothing definite resulted from the conference. A further effort will be made to bring the forces together, it was said by the farm leaders.

With considerable opposition developing among Eastern Democratic leaders to a blanket endorsement of the principles contained in the far-famed McNary-Haugen bill, a fight on the equalization fee appeared inevitable.

The New York congressional delegation already had disclosed a wide difference of opinion on this particular method of farm relief. Farm spokesmen were counting heavily upon the probability of Sen. Robert Wagner going on the resolutions committee. He fought for the bill in the last congress.

Despite the protestations of Democratic leaders that the farm issue would be met squarely and that the party favored relief, there was perceptibly less optimism among the two score farm organization heads than when they descended upon Houston expecting to be received with open arms.

Thomas Cashman of Minnesota reported pessimistic interviews, but George N. Peek of Illinois, directing head of the farm relief fight here, declared that he had every reason to believe that the Democratic platform would be highly satisfactory to the farmers.

Although the farm relief backers do not insist upon the McNary-Haugen bill being named or the equalization fee mentioned, they insist that full provision must be made for government action to control the farm surplus and assess the cost against the commodity—which is the equalization fee.

Many Democratic congressmen who fought the bill, including Rep. Charles Crisp of Georgia are among the delegates in the convention. Crisp declared that he would not accept the principles of the bill as a part of the party's campaign pledges.

Farm organization heads have approved the plank proposed by Senator Caraway of Arkansas—endorsing the vital principles of the McNary-Haugen bill without naming it—and the Illinois delegation evolved a similar proposal to be presented by Michael Igoe, member of the resolutions committee.

COLUMBUS, O., June 26—Fifty-five prisoners, including a negro life-termer from Belmont County, were paroled from the Ohio State Penitentiary at the June meeting of the state board of clemency, according to announcement at the penal institution today.

HARMONY PLATFORM, EARLY NOMINATION, GOAL OF CONVENTION

Skirmish On Prohibition Appears Only Thing Likely To Cause Trouble; Al Smith Nomination Is Assured

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—In order to insure a greater radio audience, the Democratic convention recessed this afternoon shortly before 1 o'clock, central standard time until tonight at 7:30 o'clock when it will hear its keynote address by Claude Bowers, New York.

Although only brief business was transacted as the first session opened here at noon, there was in evidence a strong movement for Governor Smith that prophecies the nomination on the first ballot. With a certainty of more than 700 votes on the first ballot, and sentiment growing by leaps and bounds, his managers for the first time predicted his nomination on the first ballot Thursday. Previously they had promised no nomination before the third ballot.

Clem Shaver, national chairman, called the convention to order at noon today, the invocation was given and a group of patriotic airs sung, including "The Star Spangled Banner," "Dixie," and "America." The order for the convention was read and temporary organization effected, after which the convention recessed. Bowers' keynote address is scheduled to start at 8 p. m., central standard time.

AERIAL VIEW OF HOUSTON

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—The curtain went up today upon a Democratic national convention set upon ratifying the nomination of Gov. Al Smith, adopting a platform that will placate all but the extreme outer fringe of radicalism on the prohibition question and adjourning as quickly as possible.

The age-old political cry of harmony was the watchword, and for once the Democrats seemed in a fair way to realize it.

There will be a sharp skirmish on the prohibition plank in the platform but soothing influences have been at work and still working, and the majority opinion today seemed intent upon not letting either the rabid wets or the rabid drys run away with the convention, nor even to allow them to engage in any bitter and extended contest.

The Smith leaders from the wet east would like to see a wet plank in the platform. They make no bones about that. But faced here with the united opinion of the south and west Democracy against it, they are prepared to yield their views, and to accept "anything reasonable" along the prohibition line that is offered.

Similarly, the extreme drys would like to hammer into the platform a plank endorsing the "moral righteousness" and the "moral principle" of prohibition. They are not likely to get that.

In the end, after the inevitable skirmish which the real leaders on both sides are hoping to make short and snappy, a law enforcement plank as strong or stronger than that which the Republicans adopted at aKnsas City, probably will be agreed upon.

"Governor Smith's views on prohibition are well known," said one of his Eastern spokesmen. "But Governor Smith stands for law enforcement and so far as we are concerned, there is no objection to a platform declaration that will pledge the party to enforce every law on the statute books."

A strong law enforcement plank, then would be acceptable to the Eastern wets and would placate the Southern and Western drys. Of course, the radical fringe on both sides will be dissatisfied and may yet upset the apple cart and promote a bitter fight, but the chances at the opening of the convention today appeared against it.

The dry fight will be led by Dan Moody the younger red headed governor of Texas, who feels mor-

HOOVER LISTENS TO DEMOCRATIC MEET; CAMPAIGN IS QUIET

G. O. P. Candidate To Leave July 10 On Western Trip

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Herbert Hoover turned on his radio receiver today and prepared to get as much political edification as possible out of the Democratic national convention at Houston.

The Hoover camp will keep quiet while the Democrats are selecting their leaders. The G. O. P. will make no bid for the front pages for several weeks to come.

Hoover now plans to go west about July 10 and the only contemplated action prior to that time is the selection of east and west managers, posts probably to go to Senator Moses of New Hampshire, and James W. Good, of Iowa.

Good, a candidate for national chairman so far has not given any indication whether he will assume charge of the Chicago Hoover headquarters. His friends, however, said that he would be ready when the time comes.

If the Republican campaign goes according to present plans it will be a short and snappy drive. Real action is expected to start about the middle of August or the first of September, after Hoover sounds the Republican call to arms in California with his address at the notification ceremonies.

Chairman Hubert Work said the campaign would be based on accomplishments of the administration, the internationally known ability of Hoover to organize and administer big projects and a promise of constructive national policies.

"There will be no mud slinging," he said. "We don't underestimate Governor Smith's strength, but we don't think we can lose."

TEXAS TO SUPPORT JONES NOMINATION

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—Jesse H. Jones, Texas' most popular citizen, who, singlehanded, brought the Democratic convention to his home city of Houston, will receive the solid support of his state for nomination for president.

At a caucas held last night the delegation voted to place Jones' name in nomination and cast the state's entire forty votes for him. There were many dissenting "noes" heard when the resolution came up but the "ayes" drowned them out."

The wet-dry fight which had been forecost failed to materialize, and it was believed the delegation will vote solidly for the bone dry plank sponsored by Gov. Moody. The governor incidentally was chosen unaminously to represent Texas on the resolution committee which will draft the platform.

It is understood that either Gov. Moody or Linch Davidson of Houston will place Jones' name in nomination.

CROWDS FOLLOW JIMMY WALKER ON SIDEWALKS OF HOUSTON

By ROLAND KREBS

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26—They've rolled up the sidewalks of New York and relaid them in Houston.

Follow the crowd and you'll find that the crowd is following Jimmy Walker, the mayor of New York, the pal of Al Smith and, since he arrived here, the pal of the south. Jimmy's a pally guy. He calls himself a "guy." In another week the governor of South Carolina probably will be calling the governor of North Carolina a "guy."

Houston knew Jimmy was coming and, knowing that Governor Smith liked him, was prepared to make itself like him, too. No compulsion was necessary. Houston today likes Jimmy Walker because he's Jimmy Walker.

Everyone tried to—and seemingly did—get up there and shake hands with Jimmy.

"They can't convict me of picking pockets in this town," the mayor laughed. "Both my hands are in somebody else's hands all the time." And don't think they weren't.

The mayor visited the spacious—spacious until the throngs trailing him got inside—Al Smith headquarters and got his delegate's badge. Most of Houston went with him from room to room.

A newspaper correspondent suggested that a few remarks from his honor on the convention situation would be highly appreciated.

"All righty, I'll try to give you my judgment of the low-down," he said. "Boys, I hope for the good of the party. Therefore I hope they nominate Al Smith. They can't help but do it, either. Everything's harmonious here. Al doesn't need to have anybody talking for him. He stands on his record, his character and his personality. Nobody can contribute more toward his winning. Those three big assets are what have put him where he is—away out in front. No speeches in Houston can change that.

"Some folks think the governor may not get over big with the South. They believe that old crack about a New Yorker thinking every thing ends after you leave Two Hundred and Forty-Second Street. No native New Yorker ever thought that. It's the fellow out on the road with a line of samples who gets into New York for twenty-four hours every once in a while, who feels that way about the West and South.

"Whom do I think should be nominated for the vice presidency? Frankly, I'll have to leave that to someone else. I do believe he ought to be a man with presidential measurements. He shouldn't be merely a man with strength enough to pick up a gavel and say, 'Let's call the roll.' I don't know General Dawes very intimately and I am not here to look after his interests, but to save me, I can't imagine why he wasn't named the presidential candidate at Kansas City.

"Now, about the farmer, fellows. The farmers' welfare is the country's welfare. When you fool the farmer you're fooling the city fellow. Candidly, I don't know an awful lot about farming or farm products after milk has been covered. The big job in New York is to get milk to the tens of thousands of kids there who live off nothing but milk. I can tell you lots about milk, but little else about farming.

"I guess there are others like me here. So, I think we need for vice president or for some office high in the federal government a man who understands the farmer and his problems and can give him what he needs."

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—A formal offer of an alliance between leaders of the "farm revolt" and Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York was taken under consideration by the Smith managers today.

The proposal, carefully framed by a score of farm organization heads, was presented by Ed A. O'Neal of Alabama and Chester H. Gray of Washington, both legislative representatives of the American Farm Bureau Federation. It was received by Judge Joseph F. Proskauer and George W. Van Namee, generalissimo of the Smith forces.

Nothing definite resulted from the conference. A further effort will be made to bring the forces together, it was said by the farm leaders.

With considerable opposition developing among Eastern Democratic leaders to a blanket endorsement of the principles contained in the far-famed McNary-Haugen bill, a fight on the equalization fee appeared inevitable.

The New York congressional delegation already had disclosed a wide difference of opinion on this particular method of farm relief. Farm spokesmen were counting heavily upon the probability of Sen. Robert Wagner going on the resolutions committee. He fought for the bill in the last congress.

Despite the protestations of Democratic leaders that the farm issue would be met squarely and that the party favored relief, there was perceptibly less optimism among the two score farm organization heads than when they descended upon Houston expecting to be received with open arms.

Thomas Cashman of Minnesota reported pessimistic interviews, but George N. Peek of Illinois, directing head of the farm relief fight here, declared that he had every reason to believe that the Democratic platform would be highly satisfactory to the farmers.

Although the farm relief backers do not insist upon the McNary-Haugen bill being named or the equalization fee mentioned, they insist that full provision must be made for government action to control the farm surplus and assess the cost against the commodity—which is the equalization fee.

Many Democratic congressmen who fought the bill, including Rep. Charles Crisp of Georgia are among the delegates in the convention. Crisp declared that he would not accept the principles of the bill as a part of the party's campaign pledges.

Farm organization heads have approved the plank proposed by Senator Caraway of Arkansas—endorsing the vital principles of the McNary-Haugen bill without naming it—and the Illinois delegation evolved a similar proposal to be presented by Michael Igoe, member of the resolutions committee.

FREE FIFTY-FIVE

COLUMBUS, O., June 26—Fifty-five prisoners, including a negro life-termer from Belmont County, were paroled from the Ohio State Penitentiary at the June meeting of the state board of clemency, according to announcement at the penal institution today.

HARMONY PLATFORM, EARLY NOMINATION, GOAL OF CONVENTION

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—In order to insure a greater radio audience, the Democratic convention recessed this afternoon shortly before 1 o'clock, central standard time until tonight at 7:30 o'clock when it will hear its keynote address by Claude Bowers, New York.

Although only brief business was transacted as the first session opened here at noon, there was in evidence a strong movement for Governor Smith that prophecies the nomination on the first ballot. With a certainty of more than 700 votes on the first ballot, and sentiment growing by leaps and bounds, his managers for the first time predicted his nomination on the first ballot Thursday. Previously they had promised no nomination before the third ballot.

Clem Shaver, national chairman, called the convention to order at noon today, the invocation was given and a group of patriotic airs sung, including "The Star Spangled Banner," "Dixie," and "America." The order for the convention was read and temporary organization effected, after which the convention recessed. Bowers' keynote address is scheduled to start at 8 p. m., central standard time.

AERIAL VIEW OF HOUSTON

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—The curtain went up today upon a Democratic national convention set upon ratifying the nomination of Gov. Al Smith, adopting a platform that will placate all but the extreme outer fringe of radicalism on the prohibition question and adjourning as quickly as possible.

The age-old political cry of harmony was the watchword, and for once the Democrats seemed in a fair way to realize it.

There will be a sharp skirmish on the prohibition plank in the platform but soothing influences have been at work and still working, and the majority opinion today seemed intent upon not letting either the rabid wets or the rabid drys run away with the convention, nor even to allow them to engage in any bitter and extended contest.

The Smith leaders from the wet east would like to see a wet plank in the platform. They make no bones about that. But faced here with the united opinion of the south and west Democracy against it, they are prepared to yield their views, and to accept "anything reasonable" along the prohibition line that is offered.

Similarly, the extreme drys would like to hammer into the platform a plank endorsing the "moral righteousness" and the "moral principle" of prohibition. They are not likely to get that.

In the end, after the inevitable skirmish which the real leaders on both sides are hoping to make short and snappy, a law enforcement plank as strong or stronger than that which the Republicans adopted at aKnsas City, probably will be agreed upon.

"Governor Smith's views on prohibition are well known," said one of his Eastern spokesmen. "But Governor Smith stands for law enforcement and so far as we are concerned, there is no objection to a platform declaration that will pledge the party to enforce every law on the statute books."

A strong law enforcement plank, then would be acceptable to the Eastern wets and would placate the Southern and Western drys. Of course, the radical fringe on both sides will be dissatisfied and may yet upset the apple cart and promote a bitter fight, but the chances at the opening of the convention today appeared against it.

The dry fight will be led by Dan Moody the younger red headed governor of Texas, who feels mor-

HOOVER LISTENS TO DEMOCRATIC MEET; CAMPAIGN IS QUIET

G. O. P. Candidate To Leave July 10 On Western Trip

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Herbert Hoover turned on his radio receiver today and prepared to get as much political edification as possible out of the Democratic national convention at Houston.

The Hoover camp will keep quiet while the Democrats are selecting their leaders. The G. O. P. will make no bid for the front pages for several weeks to come.

Hoover now plans to go west about July 10 and the only contemplated action prior to that time is the selection of east and west managers, posts probably to go to Senator Moses of New Hampshire, and James W. Good, of Iowa.

Good, a candidate for national chairman so far has not given any indication whether he will assume charge of the Chicago Hoover headquarters. His friends, however, said that he would be ready when the time comes.

If the Republican campaign goes according to present plans it will be a short and snappy drive. Real action is expected to start about the middle of August or the first of September, after Hoover sounds the Republican call to arms in California with his address at the notification ceremonies.

Chairman Hubert Work said the campaign would be based on accomplishments of the administration, the internationally known ability of Hoover to organize and administer big projects and a promise of constructive national policies.

"There will be no mud slinging," he said. "We don't underestimate Governor Smith's strength, but we don't think we can lose."

TEXAS TO SUPPORT JONES NOMINATION

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—Jesse H. Jones, Texas' most popular citizen, who, singlehanded, brought the Democratic convention to his home city of Houston, will receive the solid support of his state for nomination for president.

At a caucas held last night the delegation voted to place Jones' name in nomination and cast the state's entire forty votes for him. There were many dissenting "noes" heard when the resolution came up but the "ayes" drowned them out."

The wet-dry fight which had been forecost failed to materialize, and it was believed the delegation will vote solidly for the bone dry plank sponsored by Gov. Moody. The governor incidentally was chosen unaminously to represent Texas on the resolution committee which will draft the platform.

It is understood that either Gov. Moody or Linch Davidson of Houston will place Jones' name in nomination.

MAN KILLED WHEN AUTO HITS TRUCK

CINCINNATI, O., June 26.—One man is dead and another is in a hospital here today suffering from a fractured skull as result of a crash between an automobile and an ice truck late yesterday.

Carl Vaughn, 36, died of a fractured skull a few hours after the accident. Andrew Conroy, 65, who was riding with Vaughn, is in a grave condition according to physicians.

CROWDS FOLLOW JIMMY WALKER ON SIDEWALKS OF HOUSTON

By ROLAND KREBS

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26—They've rolled up the sidewalks of New York and relaid them in Houston.

Follow the crowd and you'll find that the crowd is following Jimmy Walker, the mayor of New York, the pal of Al Smith and, since he arrived here, the pal of the south. Jimmy's a pally guy. He calls himself a "guy." In another week the governor of South Carolina probably will be calling the governor of North Carolina a "guy."

Houston knew Jimmy was coming and, knowing that Governor Smith liked him, was prepared to make itself like him, too. No compulsion was necessary. Houston today likes Jimmy Walker because he's Jimmy Walker.

Everyone tried to—and seemingly did—get up there and shake hands with Jimmy.

"They can't convict me of picking pockets in this town," the mayor laughed. "Both my hands are in somebody else's hands all the time." And don't think they weren't.

The mayor visited the spacious—spacious until the throngs trailing him got inside—Al Smith headquarters and got his delegate's badge. Most of Houston went with him from room to room.

A newspaper correspondent suggested that a few remarks from his honor on the convention situation would be highly appreciated.

"All righty, I'll try to give you my judgment of the low-down," he said. "Boys, I hope for the good of the party. Therefore I hope they nominate Al Smith. They can't help but do it, either. Everything's harmonious here. Al doesn't need to have anybody talking for him. He stands on his record, his character and his personality. Nobody can contribute more toward his winning. Those three big assets are what have put him where he is—away out in front. No speeches in Houston can change that.

"Some folks think the governor may not get over big with the South. They believe that old crack about a New Yorker thinking every thing ends after you leave Two Hundred and Forty-Second Street. No native New Yorker ever thought that. It's the fellow out on the road with a line of samples who gets into New York for twenty-four hours every once in a while, who feels that way about the West and South.

"Whom do I think should be nominated for the vice presidency? Frankly, I'll have to leave that to someone else. I do believe he ought to be a man with presidential measurements. He shouldn't be merely a man with strength enough to pick up a gavel and say, 'Let's call the roll.' I don't know General Dawes very intimately and I am not here to look after his interests, but to save me, I can't imagine why he wasn't named the presidential candidate at Kansas City.

"Now, about the farmer, fellows. The farmers' welfare is the country's welfare. When you fool the farmer you're fooling the city fellow. Candidly, I don't know an awful lot about farming or farm products after milk has been covered. The big job in New York is to get milk to the tens of thousands of kids there who live off nothing but milk. I can tell you lots about milk, but little else about farming.

"I guess there are others like me here. So, I think we need for vice president or for some office high in the federal government a man who understands the farmer and his problems and can give him what he needs."

OSBORN COUPLE IS UNITED ON SATURDAY

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Osborn, O., when Miss Fredricka Pinnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Pinnell, of Osborn, was united in marriage to Mr. Walter Funke, of Dayton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Funke, of Magdeburg, Germany, with Rev. B. B. Fleming officiating.

The bride wore a white satin wedding gown trimmed in real lace, with a tulle veil arranged with orange blossoms. Her flowers were sweetheart roses, forget-me-nots and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Homer Woodling, of Bloomfield, Ind., who was matron of honor. Ursel Goldz, the niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl and Betty Fleming carried the bride's train.

Mr. Funke was attended by Mr. Joe Pinnell as best man.

The bridal party stood under an arch of honeysuckle and daisies tied with bowls of tulle. Preceding the ceremony music was furnished by Messrs. Jacob and Emery Pinnell, who sang "At Dawning," and "I Love You Truly." Mrs. R. C. Haen, aunt of the bride, sang "O Promise Me." They were accompanied at the piano by a sister of the bride, Mrs. Harold St. John, who played the wedding march from Lohengrin and a program of wedding music during the reading of the service.

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." The plaintiff was also awarded custody of the minor children, subject to her husband's right to visit them and also the three oldest children at all reasonable times.

The plaintiff was also allowed $25 counsel fees to be paid in six weeks.

On the application of the defendant, with his wife consenting, the court has modified an order of injunction in order to permit the defendant to carry on his farm in the usual manner and for a checking account in the Bowersville Bank to be used in operation of the farm, it being understood, however, that the defendant shall not dispose of chattels on the farm without an order of the court.

GIVEN DIVORCE

Louis Sherman has been granted a divorce from Lerlie Sherman in Common Pleas Court on grounds of gross neglect of duty. The plaintiff was awarded custody of the child and the matter of its support is referred to Juvenile Court.

MAY FORECLOSE

Foreclosure of mortgaged property has been ordered in the event of non-payment of $2,633.40, the amount of a judgment obtained by The Home Building and Savings Co. against George Haller and others in Common Pleas Court. The original debt was $2,563.83, but interest of $333.02 accumulated since July 1, 1926, of which the defendants have paid off $263.40, left $2,633.40 still due, the entry shows.

SALE APPROVED

Sale of real estate to D. A. Oliver for $875 has been confirmed by the court and distribution of the proceeds ordered in the case of John W. Haughey and others against Zora Smith and others in Common Pleas Court.

CONFESS JUDGMENT

The Southwestern Oil Products Corp., defendant in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by the Sun Oil Co., has confessed judgment for $674.85 plus interest.

EAST END NEWS

The play "Joseph of Egypt" which is being staged at the Third Baptist Church the night of June 28, by the members of Park Ave. Baptist Church of Piqua is one that was received very favorably by a large and appreciative audience a few nights in Piqua. Many who were in attendance are urgently requesting that it be repeated.

The pastor of the church believes they will bring and leave the same degree of satisfaction here.

The play is very instructive and interesting, and depicts the life and events of Joseph and his brothers.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

AGE AND RIGHTEOUSNESS—The hoary head is a crown of glory, if it be found in the way of righteousness.—Prov. 16:31.

THRILL IN OCEAN FLIGHTS

America has not reached the stage that it is jaded by transoceanic flights and still the thrill of the Friendship's successful voyage from Newfoundland to Wales is not in the fact that the Atlantic was crossed brilliantly, but that it marked the first successful flight of its kind by a woman.

Miss Amelia Earhart has achieved a distinction which many others have sought. Three women have, in fact, lost their lives in daring attempts to win that honor and a fourth escaped death only by miraculous good fortune. As was the case with masculine pioneers along the transocean airway, other feminine fliers will undoubtedly repeat Miss Earhart's feat, but the distinction of being first is forever hers.

For the American girl there are receptions and decorations in Europe and unlimited publicity at home. The public is always glad to applaud such courage and serene indifference to the possibilities of death as she has shown.

Of course the flight showed again the likely possibility of crossing the Atlantic from west to east. This was not a New York to Paris flight, but covered something better than 1900 miles, but Miss Earhart and her two male companions did the trick and did it well and encouraged, without doubt, others to make the try during the summer.

ANOTER WAR OF THE AIR

A bitter battle will be fought in Washington early in July, when the federal radio commission will hear what reasons 175 broadcasting stations have to offer as to why they should not be silenced after August 1, as ordered by the commission. At this time it looks as if all are determined to fight it out to the last ditch.

One station after another has announced that it will be represented in Washington when hearings on revocation are inaugurated, prepared to substantiate its claim that it serves the public interest, convenience and necessity. They are prepared to fight, not only individualy, but collectively. It will be a bitter fight, ending up finally in the courts.

If the commission's opinion that it has the right to clean up radio through license revocation is sustained, the problem of providing good broadcasting can be solved with neatness and dispatch. If the courts rule otherwise, further attempts to clear the air will be futile under the present law.

There is no quarrel between public, commission and broadcaster on the point that there are too many stations. Where they cannot agree is on the stations to remain and those that are to go. In some cases the commission must fight alone against stations and loyal listeners, but in the majority of instances the public will join forces with the commission.

Funny people in the Balkans—the college boys riot over important things like government, instead of a football decision.

A great many people, who think that politics is rotten, have never lifted a finger to improve it.

Prosperous times are those in which people feel rich enough to take on more debt.

ROCKETS

An automobile driven by spurts of expanding gases, like a Fourth of July rocket, has been given a trial in Germany. Prof. R. H. Goddard, of Clark university, Worcester, has worked for years on the idea of a rocket that will penetrate beyond the air which surrounds the earth—and perhaps land on the moon. Tests of the rocket automobile may be followed by the building of a rocket airplane that will go higher than any plane can reach today. Will the Lindbergh of the future be the man who makes the first inter- planetary flight?

FLOWERS AND THE "CASE"

The old song says that "the flowers that bloom in the spring have nothing to do with the case." Like many another old song or old saw perhaps it's not quite true.

"Whatever the illness," says a member of the staff of Johns Hopkins hospital, "we know that the cherry color given to a hospital room by a bunch of roses has a decidedly good effect on a patient. Of course we can't measure the exact amount of improvement but it's there."

MUSHROOMS

Looking for a start in business life—or a new start? Try mushrooms. Abandoned ice houses along the Hudson river have been converted into mushroom farms. It is said the biggest of the old ice houses can produce a $600 crop every day.

SAXE

There are several ways of acquiring lasting fame—some of them doubtful. Probably the world will long remember Oscar Saxe, the Belgian. He invented the saxophone 90 years ago.

POPULARITY

If you are liked by everybody you ought to write yourself down as a failure and start all over again. It isn't possible to have ideas of any importance, convictions, or courage and be liked by everybody. To say that a man is universally popular is to condemn him in the eyes of the more intelligent. Even wealth, which may be accidental, which you may inherit or win without having exercised any singular good judgment, will be sure to make you unpopular with some who haven't wealth. And no matter how you spend it there will always be some who think you are crazy. Don't crave universal popularity. Even if you won to that position you would lose—because you wouldn't be standing for anything.

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, June 26.—The most assiduous reader of the obituary notices published in newspapers in the metropolitan area is one Max Deitschmann. To bereaved widows, mothers or children he mails polite cards, tactfully announcing that he is always prepared to pay cash for apparel of the departed.

Deitschmann is the head man of the unique institution, which is organized like the Stock exchange, with 500 "members" who must abide by an ethical code. The members regularly canvass the city for discarded clothing. "Pay cash clos! Old clos! Old clos!" is a familiar cry in the residential streets. From 20,000 to 40,000 pieces of men's wear pours into the exchange every working day.

The clothes are not resold over here, but are shipped abroad. "Americans are too rich to buy old clothes, and Europeans are too poor to have them," they say at the exchange. In Turkey and Arabia there always is a demand for Occidental trousers. Hindus like to wear American vests because the native costume, which consists of loose folds of cotton cloth, has no pockets. British traders buy American trousers and vests to trade for Oriental rugs and native products. They buy American coats to trade for ivory among African natives. Many an explorer comes upon Africans in the wilds, clad grandly in American-tailored coats and nothing else.

The cost of maintaining an airplane is about the same as the upkeep of a first-class car, owners of private planes in New York are finding. Owners of private planes, who keep them in the several public hangars on Long Island, are charged $50 a month, and this fee includes service, such as cleaning the ship, keeping the engine lubricated, warming up the engine when needed, etc.

Next to the Bible, New York telephone directories are the most widely circulated books in the world. Editions of the three sections in which the directory is published exceed 4,000,000. It's the biggest printing job in the country. If royalties were paid the "authors" they'd be made millionaires every day.

The authors are an enormous clerical staff, which works the year around, for in the Manhattan-Bronx section alone, with about 610,000 listings, there are an average of 350,000 changes a year. That shows you how unsettled New York life is.

Like the Bible, its greatest circulation rival, the New York phone directory has a wide world circulation. Libraries, newspapers, business concerns and phone companies everywhere keep it on file. To persons other than subscribers it is sold for $1 a section.

In New York the smock has become what the overall is to men—the symbol of toil. It has become the uniform of the working girl. But there never was such a thing as silk overalls, and smocks of that material are preferred by stenographers and shop girls. Department stores report a greater demand for smocks than for the old-fashioned apron.

The biggest farm sales agency in the world is in New York, and most of its customers are New Yorkers who get away from the city. But not too far away, for the biggest demand is for farms within easy reach of the city. The next largest demand is for farms in the far west.

All of the clothing dummies used in displays by a W. 33rd street store are images of Lindbergh.

What do you want to know about New York? Ask C. K., 2200 Times building, New York, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

The most exclusive golf course around New York, and possibly in the world, is that of the Crick club, which has J. P. Morgan, the Vanderbilts and other money moguls as members, most of whom go to and from the course in private yachts. No bills ever are handed to club members, regardless of how many times they play or what they order at the clubhouse. At the end of the year each member pays an equal share of the gross expense. This runs into the thousands.

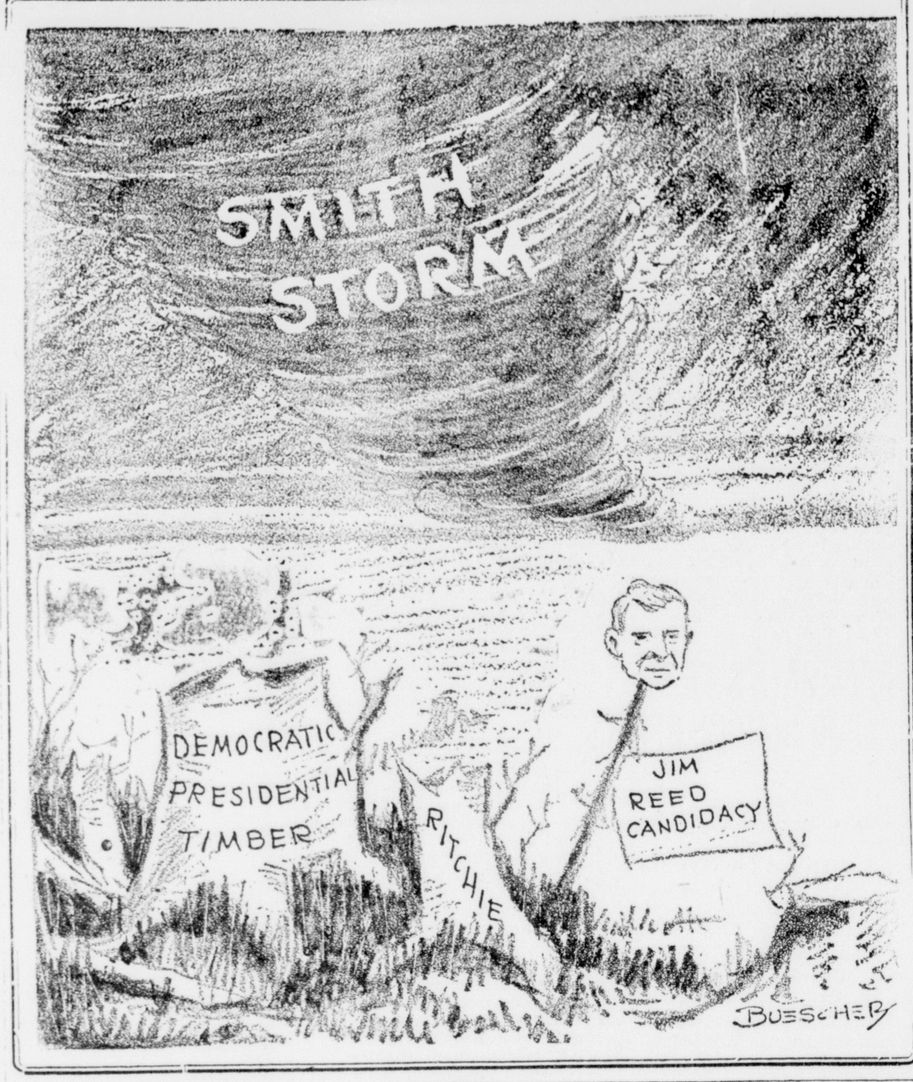
REVEALS GOOD REFRIGERATORS SAVE 50% IN ICE OVER POOR

Recent experiments by the Home Institute of "Delineator" as described in the July issue of the monthly conclusively prove that a cheap refrigerator is a waste of money.

"Performance," says "Delineator," "shows that the cheap ice-box uses about 50% more ice than the more expensive ones, and that temperatures within the food compartment are 17% higher. Food remains fresher in both flavor and appearance in refrigerators which maintain adequate temperatures. Temperatures within the food chamber should average under 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

"A glossy white exterior and a smooth white porcelain interior do not insure good refrigeration—it is rather the materials which come between the two and the manner in which they are placed. In the good refrigerators which the Institute has examined there have been from six to fourteen separate layers of insulation material sealed into place—the number depending somewhat on the type and thickness of these materials. The thickness of the walls varied from 4 to 5 inches."

REED AND THE OAKS



How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

In the summer time every skin, be it youthful or mature, oily, normal or dry, has two outstanding beauty needs which the wise woman will not overlook.

The first and most important is nourishment. The sun has exactly the same effect on your skin as excesive heat would have on anything. It dries out the natural moisture, oil or lubrication, and, as a consequence, lines, wrinkles and squint lines come boldly into evidence.

To restore those natural elementtal oils is a very important part of a good commonsense beauty regime. That is the reason I advocated for your beauty kit a generous jar of rich cleansing cream, for it should do double duty to the normal skin, by both cleansing and lubricating the tissues.

Now if by any chance your skin is not normal and healthy, the youthful average—you will be very wise to add an actual, active nourishing cream to your skin essentials, too. Especially around the eyes, you will soon see the devastating effects of direct sun rays if you are'nt very careful.

To the sensitive skin I suggest an eye balsam to build this area up; for your eyes are so important as telltale age announcers, that it is wise to give them additional care should they show the slightest sign of developing wrinkles, crowsfeet or squint lines.

Beware of heavy or dragging movements around your eyes. The surface area is extremely delicate, and you must be careful not to pull the muscles.

"Finger-print" either your balsam or anti-wrinkle cream very gently with two fingers of your hand—patting very, very faintly.

The second need of your skin is for bleaching. Any freckles, liver spots or discolorations come out most noticeably in the summer time. I have stressed the importance of protection and I am sure I need not repeat myself here.

It is a simple enough matter to care for your skin sensibly in summer if you follow these rules for preserving and protecting your skin.

Diet and Health

ANSWERS TO MOTHERS
Bathing During Pregnancy

Mrs. B. — A good scrub, with soap and a scrubbrush or a rough cloth, is even more important during pregnancy than at other times, for the skin is more active than usual and requires more care.

The water should be warm, not hot, nor should it be too cold. during the last month, a tub bath should not be used because of the danger of the wash water's possibility introducing infected matter. This is especially, mandatory to those who have had children.

As to bathing and swimming in ocean or fresh water, authorities differ. Brodhead holds that it is not harmful, if the exercise is not unduly prolonged nor to too energetic, and is followed by a good reaction. De-Lee's idea is that cold sponges or cold bathing or ocean bathing should not be taken during pregnancy. Your own physician should decide for you.

If you have been in the habit of taking cold rubdowns or cold showers after your bath, it seems to me that you can continue that, as it is an excellent health habit.

Our list of books recommended to mothers contains the names of some of pre-and post-natal care. The column rules for obtaining all articles, except the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, are to send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with two cents in coin, for the reducing and gaining pamphlet, ten cents in coin, in addition to the self-addressed, stamped envelops.

Cod Liver Oil for Undernourishment.

Mrs. O's little boy of 11 is very pale and underweight and is very much troubled with constipation. She wants to know if cod liver oil is of use in building up the health, and how it should be given and in what dosage? She gave him a little cod liver oil for a week and he seemed to have the hives that week.

Yes, Mrs. O., cod liver is good for undernourshed children and adults, as well. But you should take your little boy for a very complete examination to see what is the cause of his underweight, and have your physician prescribe the dosage. Usually one to two teaspoonfuls a day are given before or between meals. If followed by orange juice, it is not so disagreeable. It may be possible that the cod liver oil caused him to have the hives; it may in those who are susceptible to hives.

As your little boy is constipated, I imagine his diet is wrong and his wrong diet may be the cause of his underwenght also.

You should have some good textbook on the general care and feeding of children. See answer to Mrs. B. for the column rules for obtaining this.

Inflammation of the Ovary

Mrs. R.—It wasn't the slight operation at all that "ruined" you, nor is it your imagination or nerves, as your mother and sisters say. You evidently had some inflammatory condition of the ovary which has not subsided, perhaps because you have had to stay on your feet and so have not had the complete rest, as your doctor advised.

Many chronic inflammatory conditions will clear up under treatments with diathermy electric heat— and the ultra-violet rays which you have to take under the guidance of a doctor. If keeping off of your feet and the local treatments do not help you, you may have to have the ovary removed, as your doctor says.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and two cents in coin for each article to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, ten cents in coin with fully s. a. s. e. must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters in care of this paper.

Cocoa made with Milk

DINNER
Breaded Veal Steak Gravy
Riced Potatoes
Buttered Spinish or Other Greens
Lemon Cream Pie Coffee

SUPPER
Macaroni and Cheese
Green Onions Watercress
Fresh Berries Cookies

Today's Recipe

Lemon Cream Pie—One cup water, one cup sugar, two tablespoons cornstarch, two eggs, juice of one lemon, grated rind of same, pinch of salt, two tablespoons confectioner's sugar for meringue. Boil sugar and water together, add cornstarch, which has been moistened with cold water. Cook five minutes. Add yolks of eggs, lemon and salt. Cool, then pour into baked crust. Cover with meringue and brown in warm oven.

Suggestion
Children's Luncheon

This very easily prepared and satisfying dish might be named "two in one." Pare a potato and then bake it. When it is done, scoop out the inside and drop an egg in the hole. Then fill up this hole again with the scooped out potato which has been mashed. Sprinkle grated cheese over the top and put back in oven again just long enough for the egg to set. (A few seconds is usually sufficient, although this depends on individual taste.) This makes a complete dish, with a glass of milk and fruit, is all they want for their lunch. (Potato and egg thus baked serves one person.)

Parsley Potatoes
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

Two and one-half pounds potatoes, cubed, one-fourth cup water, three tablespoons butter, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons chopped parsley. Cut the pared potatoes into inch cubes, put them in a baking dish with one-fourth cup water and one teaspoon salt. Cover them and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until soft, about one hour. Add the melted butter with the chopped parsley in it and mix as it melts.

DRUNKEN PARROT STIRS TROUBLE

CHICAGO, ILL.—The alarm bell of an engine company at Central Park has been ringing frequently lately and the crews have been run ragged. It developed that various citizens thereabout, hearing agonized cries of "fire" would run to the nearest alarm box. As a result the red engines had been tearing through the streets at all hours without ever discovering the fire. Ghosts and evil spirits were being suspected and stout and fearless detectives were put on the job. Then, one night, walking along, they heard the frantic cries "fire, fire," coming from a tree top. Upon investigation they discovered a parrot, rocking unsteadily on a limb hiccoughing and yelling, "fire." The domicile of its owner was searched for a still.

Behind The Scenes in Houston, Texas

By CHARLES P. STEWART

HOUSTON, June 26. —Enough of the Kansas City contingent are on hand again in Houston to make the place seem homelike.

They're mostly newspaper fellers, to be sure, of various sorts—"trained seals" and others. A "trained seal"—for the benefit of such of the laity as may not happen to be familiar with the term, in its journalistic application — is some celebrity commissioned by a newspaper or news outfit to "cover" an important event for the sake of his peculiar "angle" and reputation—or hers, as the case may be.

A "trained seal's" stuff is often highly interesting and valuable, but the newspaper rank and file incline to look on the breed a trifle askance as diletantte-ish and temperamental. There's perhaps a bit of jealousy about it also, for all a "trained seal's" expected to provide is genius—not the sweat of his brow, like the ordinary newspaper guys.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, acted as a "trained seal" for one of the newspaper chains, at Kansas City. Whether or not he's here, too, I don't know yet.

The senator, it should be said, isn't viewed by us professionals with any of the stand-off-ish-ness that we feel toward many of the other "trained seals." Nye is a working newspaper man himself and only a "trained seal" ex-officie. He told me that part of his stuff didn't "get by" with his newspaper chain, either, and I could see why, when he read it to me.

Nye wasn't a darned bit pleased with the Kansas City choice of either candidate, or the platform the convention adopted, and to say that he was emphaic in the way he said so expresses it mildly. If his editor was afraid it would hurt somebody's fellings I don't wonder.

It's permissible for a "trained seal" to take certain liberties — but there's a limit — at arson or lese majesty or somewhere.

A regular "newspaper train" left Kansas City the night following the convention's adjournment, bound with the bulk of the press crowd for the Democratic blowout.

My buddy, Bill Davy of Central Press, and I, however, preferred to travel by ourselves and eschewed this aggregation. It was scheduled to be a social function, with golf and country club stopovers in transit. Bill and I reckoned we could pick up more political dope mingling with the natives as we traveled. We don't play golf either and our tastes don't run to country clubs. We're a pair of proletarian cusses.

Besides, we were tired, and wanted to "sleep it off" over Sunday in "K. C.," before plunging into the Houston maelstrom.

"K. C.," all in all, is a good town, but peculiar as to weather.

The night before we pulled out a gale sprang up which I'll defy the arctic regions to equal — not that it was cold, but it was so violent.

The air was filled with flying convention decorations, signs, awnings—everything out-of-doors and portable. It was next to impossible for Bill and me, untrained as we are in that kind of tempests to stand up against it.

But through it all the street were thronged with cheerful crowds—Saturday evening shoppers, young chaps in straw hats and flannels, pretty girls in airy summer attire—not paying the slightest attention to it. As indifferent they were, as a Fifth avenue procession on a pleasant Easter—just happy, care-free and enjoying themselves.

The next morning we learned that several Kansas towns were destroyed about 100 people injured and eight or ten lives lost. The newspapers gave it half a dozen paragraphs.

Merely a mild summer evening in Kansas City.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

A young woman raises a very interesting question. Her friends tell her that love is blind and doubt her love for a young man because she sees his faults as well as his virtues. Should one be blind to another's fault's in order to be sure they love them? Don't we love people just because they are themselves-faults, virtues and all? I think so. This girl's friend is, so she says, "a very human kind of man. He has ever so many faults—and he's so splendid in so many ways, too." And both his faults and his virtues make up a lovable personality, isn't that so? I don't think you need to doubt that love.

A girl who pathetically signs herself "Nobody's Darling," loves a boy who is friendly with her, but also with other girls. She wants to win his love. You won't do it by getting mad when he wants to talk of other girl friends, my dear. Listen to him, and then tell him how nice your other boy friends are. Maybe he'll take the hint that there are topics of conversation more alluring to a girl than other girls.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am 17 Do you think I am too young to get married? The fellow I go with is very nice to me. But I belong to the Evangelical church and he belongs to the Catholic. Do you think this should interfere with our love? I am almost sure my parents would object to me getting married to this boy for that reason. Please give me your advice.

"MARY LOU."

Yes, of course I think you are too young to get married. Mary Lou, and when you are older and your daughter of 17 wants to do that little thing you will be horrified. Difference of religion may make a deal of trouble in a family and your family and your boy friend's, too, may—probably will—object strenuously to a marriage between you. Only great love and tolerance can make a happy marriage of such a match.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

OVER THERE

"Mrs. Ostrich was a strong minded Lady-Bird. We Bobolinks needed no one to tell us that Mrs. Ostrich spoke very firmly and it was evident she meant what she said.

"Oliver Ostrich gave a sigh of relief. 'Very well, my dear, that is all I wished to make sure of,' said he. 'It is a lucky thing that you are on your way to the Ostrich Farm, for that is what I called you back for—to ask you to take the Bobolinks over so they could see what the place looked like. These little birds are from the North, where none of our race live and they tell me they are sightseeing in our country. Of course, there is nothing like the farm for seeing interesting things. Every stranger must visit it at least once while he is here. Do you mind taking them over to meet one of our friends?'

"'Not a bit,' replied Mrs. Ostrich, cordially. 'Come on, Bobolinks. Hop on my back and we will be over there in no time. Goodby, husband. Keep the eggs warm and be sure not to sleep too soundly. I had a dreadful time trying to wake you up yetserday morning. Goodness knows what would happen if an enemy crept upon you when you were like that! I'll be back at nine o'clock sharp.'

"Away trotted Mrs. Ostrich with us Bobolinks upon her back, and soon Oliver Ostrich was lost to sight among the sand hills.

"Although not quite as large as her husband, Mrs. Ostrich could run just as fast, and before long we saw ahead of us a lot of white streaks. These turned out to be the pickets in a fence. And beyond the fence was a sea of heads—heads that bobbed up and down as their owners moved about. Then we got close enough to see the long curved necks and then the plumed bodies of the Ostriches—why, there must have been hundreds and hundreds of them. Mrs. Bobolink and I were quite used to seeing lots of birds together—sometimes when the Bobolinks gathered to make the trip south the sky was just filled with them. But somehow the crowd beyond the fence seemed greater than any we had ever seen, or perhaps it only seemed so because the birds were so large and their feathers so fluffy and they were all shut up together.

"At any rate we could hardly wait until Mrs. Ostrich introduced us to one of her captive friends—we did want to ask some captive so many questions. When Mrs. Ostrich was yet quite a distance from the fence she stopped and peered cautiously about. Not a Two-Legs in sight outside the fence or inside—as far as we could see. We ever rose high in the air to make sure When we told Mrs. Ostrich we spied no one, step by step she went toward the yard. When she had reached the rails of the fence, she gave a low hiss. Quick as a flash through the fence popped a head."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

AGE AND RIGHTEOUSNESS—The hoary head is a crown of glory, if it be found in the way of righteousness.—Prov. 16:31.

THRILL IN OCEAN FLIGHTS

America has not reached the stage that it is jaded by transoceanic flights and still the thrill of the Friendship's successful voyage from Newfoundland to Wales is not in the fact that the Atlantic was crossed brilliantly, but that it marked the first successful flight of its kind by a woman.

Miss Amelia Earhart has achieved a distinction which many others have sought. Three women have, in fact, lost their lives in daring attempts to win that honor and a fourth escaped death only by miraculous good fortune. As was the case with masculine pioneers along the transocean airway, other feminine fliers will undoubtedly repeat Miss Earhart's feat, but the distinction of being first is forever hers.

For the American girl there are receptions and decorations in Europe and unlimited publicity at home. The public is always glad to applaud such courage and serene indifference to the possibilities of death as she has shown.

Of course the flight showed again the likely possibility of crossing the Atlantic from west to east. This was not a New York to Paris flight, but covered something better than 1900 miles, but Miss Earhart and her two male companions did the trick and did it well and encouraged, without doubt, others to make the try during the summer.

ANOTER WAR OF THE AIR

A bitter battle will be fought in Washington early in July, when the federal radio commission will hear what reasons 175 broadcasting stations have to offer as to why they should not be silenced after August 1, as ordered by the commission. At this time it looks as if all are determined to fight it out to the last ditch.

One station after another has announced that it will be represented in Washington when hearings on revocation are inaugurated, prepared to substantiate its claim that it serves the public interest, convenience and necessity. They are prepared to fight, not only individualy, but collectively. It will be a bitter fight, ending up finally in the courts.

If the commission's opinion that it has the right to clean up radio through license revocation is sustained, the problem of providing good broadcasting can be solved with neatness and dispatch. If the courts rule otherwise, further attempts to clear the air will be futile under the present law.

There is no quarrel between public, commission and broadcaster on the point that there are too many stations. Where they cannot agree is on the stations to remain and those that are to go. In some cases the commission must fight alone against stations and loyal listeners, but in the majority of instances the public will join forces with the commission.

Funny people in the Balkans—the college boys riot over important things like government, instead of a football decision.

A great many people, who think that politics is rotten, have never lifted a finger to improve it.

Prosperous times are those in which people feel rich enough to take on more debt.

ROCKETS

An automobile driven by spurts of expanding gases, like a Fourth of July rocket, has been given a trial in Germany. Prof. R. H. Goddard, of Clark university, Worcester, has worked for years on the idea of a rocket that will penetrate beyond the air which surrounds the earth—and perhaps land on the moon. Tests of the rocket automobile may be followed by the building of a rocket airplane that will go higher than any plane can reach today. Will the Lindbergh of the future be the man who makes the first inter- planetary flight?

FLOWERS AND THE "CASE"

The old song says that "the flowers that bloom in the spring have nothing to do with the case." Like many another old song or old saw perhaps it's not quite true.

"Whatever the illness," says a member of the staff of Johns Hopkins hospital, "we know that the cherry color given to a hospital room by a bunch of roses has a decidedly good effect on a patient. Of course we can't measure the exact amount of improvement but it's there."

MUSHROOMS

Looking for a start in business life—or a new start? Try mushrooms. Abandoned ice houses along the Hudson river have been converted into mushroom farms. It is said the biggest of the old ice houses can produce a $600 crop every day.

SAXE

There are several ways of acquiring lasting fame—some of them doubtful. Probably the world will long remember Oscar Saxe, the Belgian. He invented the saxophone 90 years ago.

POPULARITY

If you are liked by everybody you ought to write yourself down as a failure and start all over again. It isn't possible to have ideas of any importance, convictions, or courage and be liked by everybody. To say that a man is universally popular is to condemn him in the eyes of the more intelligent. Even wealth, which may be accidental, which you may inherit or win without having exercised any singular good judgment, will be sure to make you unpopular with some who haven't wealth. And no matter how you spend it there will always be some who think you are crazy. Don't crave universal popularity. Even if you won to that position you would lose—because you wouldn't be standing for anything.

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, June 26.—The most assiduous reader of the obituary notices published in newspapers in the metropolitan area is one Max Deitschmann. To bereaved widows, mothers or children he mails polite cards, tactfully announcing that he is always prepared to pay cash for apparel of the departed.

Deitschmann is the head man of the unique institution, which is organized like the Stock exchange, with 500 "members" who must abide by an ethical code. The members regularly canvass the city for discarded clothing. "Pay cash clos! Old clos! Old clos!" is a familiar cry in the residential streets. From 20,000 to 40,000 pieces of men's wear pours into the exchange every working day.

The clothes are not resold over here, but are shipped abroad. "Americans are too rich to buy old clothes, and Europeans are too poor to have them," they say at the exchange. In Turkey and Arabia there always is a demand for Occidental trousers. Hindus like to wear American vests because the native costume, which consists of loose folds of cotton cloth, has no pockets. British traders buy American trousers and vests to trade for Oriental rugs and native products. They buy American coats to trade for ivory among African natives. Many an explorer comes upon Africans in the wilds, clad grandly in American-tailored coats and nothing else.

The cost of maintaining an airplane is about the same as the upkeep of a first-class car, owners of private planes in New York are finding. Owners of private planes, who keep them in the several public hangars on Long Island, are charged $50 a month, and this fee includes service, such as cleaning the ship, keeping the engine lubricated, warming up the engine when needed, etc.

Next to the Bible, New York telephone directories are the most widely circulated books in the world. Editions of the three sections in which the directory is published exceed 4,000,000. It's the biggest printing job in the country. If royalties were paid the "authors" they'd be made millionaires every day.

The authors are an enormous clerical staff, which works the year around, for in the Manhattan-Bronx section alone, with about 610,000 listings, there are an average of 350,000 changes a year. That shows you how unsettled New York life is.

Like the Bible, its greatest circulation rival, the New York phone directory has a wide world circulation. Libraries, newspapers, business concerns and phone companies everywhere keep it on file. To persons other than subscribers it is sold for $1 a section.

In New York the smock has become what the overall is to men—the symbol of toil. It has become the uniform of the working girl. But there never was such a thing as silk overalls, and smocks of that material are preferred by stenographers and shop girls. Department stores report a greater demand for smocks than for the old-fashioned apron.

The biggest farm sales agency in the world is in New York, and most of its customers are New Yorkers who get away from the city. But not too far away, for the biggest demand is for farms within easy reach of the city. The next largest demand is for farms in the far west.

All of the clothing dummies used in displays by a W. 33rd street store are images of Lindbergh.

What do you want to know about New York? Ask C. K., 2200 Times building, New York, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

The most exclusive golf course around New York, and possibly in the world, is that of the Crick club, which has J. P. Morgan, the Vanderbilts and other money moguls as members, most of whom go to and from the course in private yachts. No bills ever are handed to club members, regardless of how many times they play or what they order at the clubhouse. At the end of the year each member pays an equal share of the gross expense. This runs into the thousands.

REVEALS GOOD REFRIGERATORS SAVE 50% IN ICE OVER POOR

Recent experiments by the Home Institute of "Delineator" as described in the July issue of the monthly conclusively prove that a cheap refrigerator is a waste of money.

"Performance," says "Delineator," "shows that the cheap icebox uses about 50% more ice than the more expensive ones, and that temperatures within the food compartment are 17% higher. Food remains fresher in both flavor and appearance in refrigerators which maintain adequate temperatures. Temperatures within the food chamber should average under 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

"A glossy white exterior and a smooth white porcelain interior do not insure good refrigeration—it is rather the materials which come between the two and the manner in which they are placed. In the good refrigerators which the Institute has examined there have been from six to fourteen separate layers of insulation material sealed into place—the number depending somewhat on the type and thickness of these materials. The thickness of the walls varied from 4 to 5 inches."

REED AND THE OAKS

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

In the summer time every skin, be it youthful or mature, oily, normal or dry, has two outstanding beauty needs which the wise woman will not overlook.

The first and most important is nourishment. The sun has exactly the same effect on your skin as excesive heat would have on anything. It dries out the natural moisture, oil or lubrication, and, as a consequence, lines, wrinkles and squint lines come boldly into evidence.

To restore those natural elementtal oils is a very important part of a good commonsense beauty regime. That is the reason I advocated for your beauty kit a generous jar of rich cleansing cream, for it should do double duty to the normal skin, by both cleansing and lubricating the tissues.

Now if by any chance your skin is not normal and healthy, the youthful average—you will be very wise to add an actual, active nourishing cream to your skin essentials, too. Especially around the eyes, you will soon see the devastating effects of direct sun rays if you are'nt very careful.

To the sensitive skin I suggest an eye balsam to build this area up; for your eyes are so important as telltale age announcers, that it is wise to give them additional care should they show the slightest sign of developing wrinkles, crowsfeet or squint lines.

Beware of heavy or dragging movements around your eyes. The surface area is extremely delicate, and you must be careful not to pull the muscles.

"Finger-print" either your balsam or anti-wrinkle cream very gently with two fingers of your hand—patting very, very faintly.

The second need of your skin is for bleaching. Any freckles, liver spots or discolorations come out most noticeably in the summer time. I have stressed the importance of protection and I am sure I need not repeat myself here.

It is a simple enough matter to care for your skin sensibly in summer if you follow these rules for preserving and protecting your skin.

Diet and Health

ANSWERS TO MOTHERS
Bathing During Pregnancy

Mrs. B. — A good scrub, with soap and a scrubbrush or a rough cloth, is even more important during pregnancy than at other times, for the skin is more active than usual and requires more care.

The water should be warm, not hot, nor should it be too cold. during the last month, a tub bath should not be used because of the danger of the wash water's possibility introducing infected matter. This is especially, mandatory to those who have had children.

As to bathing and swimming in ocean or fresh water, authorities differ. Brodhead holds that it is not harmful, if the exercise is not unduly prolonged nor to too energetic, and is followed by a good reaction. De-Lee's idea is that cold sponges or cold bathing or ocean bathing should not be taken during pregnancy. Your own physician should decide for you.

If you have been in the habit of taking cold rubdowns or cold showers after your bath, it seems to me that you can continue that, as it is an excellent health habit.

Our list of books recommended to mothers contains the names of some of pre-and post-natal care. The column rules for obtaining all articles, except the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, are to send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with two cents in coin, for the reducing and gaining pamphlet, ten cents in coin, in addition to the self-addressed, stamped envelops.

Cod Liver Oil for Undernourishment.

Mrs. O's little boy of 11 is very pale and underweight and is very much troubled with constipation. She wants to know if cod liver oil is of use in building up the health, and how it should be given and in what dosage? She gave him a little cod liver oil for a week and he seemed to have the hives that week.

Yes, Mrs. O., cod liver is good for undernourshed children and adults, as well. But you should take your little boy for a very complete examination to see what is the cause of his underweight, and have your physician prescribe the dosage. Usually one to two teaspoonfuls a day are given before or between meals. If followed by orange juice, it is not so disagreeable. It may be possible that the cod liver oil caused him to have the hives; it may in those who are susceptible to hives.

As your little boy is constipated, I imagine his diet is wrong and his wrong diet may be the cause of his underwenght also.

You should have some good textbook on the general care and feeding of children. See answer to Mrs. B. for the column rules for obtaining this.

Inflammation of the Ovary

Mrs. R.—It wasn't the slight operation at all that "ruined" you, nor is it your imagination or nerves, as your mother and sisters say. You evidently had some inflammatory condition of the ovary which has not subsided, perhaps because you have had to stay on your feet and so have not had the complete rest, as your doctor advised.

Many chronic inflammatory conditions will clear up under treatments with diathermy electric heat— and the ultra-violet rays which you have to take under the guidance of a doctor. If keeping off of your feet and the local treatments do not help you, you may have to have the ovary removed, as your doctor says.

Today's Recipe

Lemon Cream Pie—One cup water, one cup sugar, two tablespoons cornstarch, two eggs, juice of one lemon, grated rind of same, pinch of salt, two tablespoons confectioner's sugar for meringue. Boil sugar and water together, add cornstarch, which has been moistened with cold water. Cook five minutes. Add yolks of eggs, lemon and salt. Cool, then pour into baked crust. Cover with meringue and brown in warm oven.

Suggestion
Children's Luncheon

This very easily prepared and satisfying dish might be named "two in one." Pare a potato and then bake it. When it is done, scoop out the inside and drop an egg in the hole. Then fill up this hole again with the scooped out potato which has been mashed. Sprinkle grated cheese over the top and put back in oven again just long enough for the egg to set. (A few seconds is usually sufficient, although this depends on individual taste.) This makes a complete dish, with a glass of milk and fruit, is all they want for their lunch. (Potato and egg thus baked serves one person.)

Parsley Potatoes
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

Two and one-half pounds potatoes, cubed, one-fourth cup water, three tablespoons butter, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons chopped parsley. Cut the pared potatoes into inch cubes, put them in a baking dish with one-fourth cup water and one teaspoon salt. Cover them and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until soft, about one hour. Add the melted butter with the chopped parsley in it and mix as it melts.

DRUNKEN PARROT STIRS TROUBLE

CHICAGO, ILL.—The alarm bell of an engine company at Central Park has been ringing frequently lately and the crews have been run ragged. It developed that various citizens thereabout, hearing agonized cries of "fire" would run to the nearest alarm box. As a result the red engines had been tearing through the streets at all hours without ever discovering the fire. Ghosts and evil spirits were being suspected and stout and fearless detectives were put on the job. Then, one night, walking along, they heard the frantic cries "fire, fire," coming from a tree top. Upon investigation they discovered a parrot, rocking unsteadily on a limb hiccoughing and yelling, "fire." The domicile of its owner was searched for a still.

Behind The Scenes in Houston, Texas

By CHARLES P. STEWART

HOUSTON, June 26. —Enough of the Kansas City contingent are on hand again in Houston to make the place seem homelike.

They're mostly newspaper fellers, to be sure, of various sorts—"trained seals" and others. A "trained seal"—for the benefit of such of the laity as may not happen to be familiar with the term, in its journalistic application — is some celebrity commissioned by a newspaper or news outfit to "cover" an important event for the sake of his peculiar "angle" and reputation—or hers, as the case may be.

A "trained seal's" stuff is often highly interesting and valuable, but the newspaper rank and file incline to look on the breed a trifle askance as diletantte-ish and temperamental. There's perhaps a bit of jealousy about it also, for all a "trained seal's" expected to provide is genius—not the sweat of his brow, like the ordinary newspaper guys.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, acted as a "trained seal" for one of the newspaper chains, at Kansas City. Whether or not he's here, too, I don't know yet.

The senator, it should be said, isn't viewed by us professionals with any of the stand-off-ish-ness that we feel toward many of the other "trained seals." Nye is a working newspaper man himself and only a "trained seal" ex-officie. He told me that part of his stuff didn't "get by" with his newspaper chain, either, and I could see why, when he read it to me.

Nye wasn't a darned bit pleased with the Kansas City choice of either candidate, or the platform the convention adopted, and to say that he was emphaic in the way he said so expresses it mildly. If his editor was afraid it would hurt somebody's fellings I don't wonder.

It's permissible for a "trained seal" to take certain liberties — but there's a limit — at arson or lese majesty or somewhere.

A regular "newspaper train" left Kansas City the night following the convention's adjournment, bound with the bulk of the press crowd for the Democratic blowout.

My buddy, Bill Davy of Central Press, and I, however, preferred to travel by ourselves and eschewed this aggregation. It was scheduled to be a social function, with golf and country club stopovers in transit. Bill and I reckoned we could pick up more political dope mingling with the natives as we traveled. We don't play golf either and our tastes don't run to country clubs. We're a pair of proletarian cusses.

Besides, we were tired, and wanted to "sleep it off" over Sunday in "K. C.," before plunging into the Houston maelstrom.

"K. C.," all in all, is a good town, but peculiar as to weather.

The night before we pulled out a gale sprang up which I'll defy the arctic regions to equal — not that it was cold, but it was so violent.

The air was filled with flying convention decorations, signs, awnings—everything out-of-doors and portable. It was next to impossible for Bill and me, untrained as we are in that kind of tempests to stand up against it.

But through it all the street were thronged with cheerful crowds—Saturday evening shoppers, young chaps in straw hats and flannels, pretty girls in airy summer attire—not paying the slightest attention to it. As indifferent they were, as a Fifth avenue procession on a pleasant Easter—just happy, care-free and enjoying themselves.

The next morning we learned that several Kansas towns were destroyed about 100 people injured and eight or ten lives lost. The newspapers gave it half a dozen paragraphs.

Merely a mild summer evening in Kansas City.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

A young woman raises a very interesting question. Her friends tell her that love is blind and doubt her love for a young man because she sees his faults as well as his virtues. Should one be blind to another's fault's in order to be sure they love them? Don't we love people just because they are themselves-faults, virtues and all? I think so. This girl's friend is, so she says, "a very human kind of man. He has ever so many faults—and he's so splendid in so many ways, too." And both his faults and his virtues make up a lovable personality, isn't that so? I don't think you need to doubt that love.

A girl who pathetically signs herself "Nobody's Darling," loves a boy who is friendly with her, but also with other girls. She wants to win his love. You won't do it by getting mad when he wants to talk of other girl friends, my dear. Listen to him, and then tell him how nice your other boy friends are. Maybe he'll take the hint that there are topics of conversation more alluring to a girl than other girls.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am 17 Do you think I am too young to get married? The fellow I go with is very nice to me. But I belong to the Evangelical church and he belongs to the Catholic. Do you think this should interfere with our love? I am almost sure my parents would object to me getting married to this boy for that reason. Please give me your advice.

"MARY LOU."

Yes, of course I think you are too young to get married, Mary Lou, and when you are older and your daughter of 17 wants to do that little thing you will be horrified. Difference of religion may make a deal of trouble in a family and your family and your boy friend's, too, may—probably will—object strenuously to a marriage between you. Only great love and tolerance can make a happy marriage of such a match.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

OVER THERE

"Mrs. Ostrich was a strong minded Lady-Bird. We Bobolinks needed no one to tell us that Mrs. Ostrich spoke very firmly and it was evident she meant what she said.

"Oliver Ostrich gave a sigh of relief. 'Very well, my dear, that is all I wished to make sure of,' said he. 'It is a lucky thing that you are on your way to the Ostrich Farm, for that is what I called you back for—to ask you to take the Bobolinks over so they could see what the place looked like. These little birds are from the North, where none of our race live and they tell me they are sightseeing in our country. Of course, there is nothing like the farm for seeing interesting things. Every stranger must visit it at least once while he is here. Do you mind taking them over to meet one of our friends?'

"'Not a bit,' replied Mrs. Ostrich, cordially. 'Come on, Bobolinks. Hop on my back and we will be over there in no time. Goodby, husband. Keep the eggs warm and be sure not to sleep too soundly. I had a dreadful time trying to wake you up yetserday morning. Goodness knows what would happen if an enemy crept upon you when you were like that! I'll be back at nine o'clock sharp.'

"Away trotted Mrs. Ostrich with us Bobolinks upon her back, and soon Oliver Ostrich was lost to sight among the sand hills.

"Although not quite as large as her husband, Mrs. Ostrich could run just as fast, and before long we saw ahead of us a lot of white streaks. These turned out to be the pickets in a fence. And beyond the fence was a sea of heads—heads that bobbed up and down as their owners moved about. Then we got close enough to see the long curved necks and then the plumed bodies of the Ostriches—why, there must have been hundreds and hundreds of them. Mrs. Bobolink and I were quite used to seeing lots of birds together—sometimes when the Bobolinks gathered to make the trip south the sky was just filled with them. But somehow the crowd beyond the fence seemed greater than any we had ever seen, or perhaps it only seemed so because the birds were so large and their feathers so fluffy and they were all shut up together.

"At any rate we could hardly wait until Mrs. Ostrich introduced us to one of her captive friends—we did want to ask some captive so many questions. When Mrs. Ostrich was yet quite a distance from the fence she stopped and peered cautiously about. Not a Two-Legs in sight outside the fence or inside—as far as we could see. We even rose high in the air to make sure. When we told Mrs. Ostrich we spied no one, step by step she went toward the yard. When she had reached the rails of the fence, she gave a low hiss. Quick as a flash through the fence popped a head."

CARROLL - BINDERS WIN FROM ROTARY IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

Aided by airtight fielding which at times was spectacular, Perry Swindler pitched the Carroll-Binder Co. softball team to a 9 to 5 victory over the Rotary Club in a fast American League game Monday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

The victory, which avenged a defeat by Rotary in the first round, elevated Carroll-Binder to third place in the league, at the same time dropping the Rotarians to fourth position.

Swindler hurled well for the winners and was in trouble in only one inning, the sixth, when his team's defense cracked and the Rotarians pushed four runs across the plate.

Carroll-Binder got to Kimber, Rotary pitcher, for two runs in the first, one in the third, four in the fifth and two more in the ninth. The latter two were not needed but were thrown in for good measure.

First place will be at stake in the battle between the Lang Chevrolet Co. and the Hudson-Essex nine Tuesday night. The former team is in first place by a margin of half a game. Each entry has lost only one game, the single defeat handed to Langs having been administered by Hudson-Essex.

Carroll-Binder lineup: Leahey, 3b; Neville, 2b; Randall, c; Jay, rf; Hoag, ss; Swindler, p; D. Murrell, 1b; Yeakley, lf; Rachford, cf.

Rotary lineup: S. McClellan, lf; Baldner, 3b; Ervin, ss; Kimber, p; McElree, cf; Stout, 1b; Sayre, 2b; McClellan, c; Michael, rf.

Score by innings:

SAYS KONJOLA IS FIRST MEDICINE TO RELIEVE HIM

Nervousness Banished by This Medicine; Also Restored His Appetite.

This celebrated Konjola medicine helps Nature restore the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy normal action. Most of the common disorders of the important functionary organs have been conquered by this new compound. The people of Xenia are strongly indorsing it. Over a hundred testimonials have been received within a few short weeks, all from men and women in this vicinity, and the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store, this city, is kept busy throughout each day explaining this remarkable remedy to local people. One of the latest indorsements came from Mr. Homer Stevens, 627 West Second Street, this city, who made the following statement:

"After the wonderful way Konjola benefited me I cannot help but to praise this medicine to others", said Mr. Stevens. "It strengthened my entire system and restored my health to me.

"Some time ago my system became rundown in general and as the days passed I gradually became worse until I thought nothing would ever help me. I did not have any appetite and although the food I managed to eat did not harm me, at the same time, I was unable to gain any nourishment from it. Of course, this condition soon affected my nerves and the least trifling sound upset me. It was impossible for me to even hold a glass of water in my hands without spilling it. My work became drudgery to me and when I tried to rest my nerves kept me from being still for any length of time. When I went to bed I would roll and toss for hours before going to sleep and then when I did get to sleep I was so restless that by the time I got up the next morning I felt almost as if I had not been to bed at all.

"However, all that is changed now, because I have taken Konjola and this medicine turned out to be exactly what I always needed. With every dose I could almost feel the soothing and healing effect it had on my system and every day I began feeling better. I was steadily gaining in strength until I felt like an entirely different person. My nerves are now in perfect condition and never cause me the least bit of trouble any more. Konjola also restored my appetite and made it possible for me to gain the proper nourishment from the food I eat. At night when I go to bed I know that I will have sound and refreshing sleep. MERCHANTS PLAN BIG DOLLAR DAY IN XENIA ON THURSDAY!

Xenia Community Dollar Day will be celebrated Thursday when local merchants will combine in offering bargain attractions.

If present plans are carried out, publicity will be given Dollar Day through the medium of an auto caravan, including about fifteen autos decorated with banners, which will make a tour of a majority of the villages in Greene County Wednesday afternoon.

The banners will each carry the slogan "Xenia Community Dollar Day."

A band may also be obtained and the machines will stop in every town long enough for the musicians to play one selection, after which the caravan will proceed to the next village.

The autos will travel slowly at a speed not exceeding twenty miles an hour to enable everybody to read the banners.

The caravan is expected to be formed in front of the offices of the Greene County Auto Club at 1 p. m. Wednesday. Secretary Delver Belden has agreed to furnish a service car to lead the way.

The route under consideration calls for brief stops at Bellbrook, Spring Valley, Bowersville, Cedarville, Jamestown, Osborn, Fairfield and Yellow Springs.

Special bargain offers will be guaranteed for the sale day as the Xenia Retail Merchants Association is not only sponsoring the Dollar Day but is guaranteeing the bargains.

The committee of the association inspects all sale offers advertised and avoids duplication of offers. Coming so early in the year, Xenia and Greene County bargain hunters are assurred the pick of summer stock.

Merchants, handicapped by a late summer, have fresh stocks that they are throwing on the bargain counters for the big sale day Thursday. This insures that the bargains will not be odds, ends and remnants, but first-class merchandise timely in value. Merchants are promising that the Dollar Day will be the most important from the buyers' point of view of any ever held here.

BELDEN TO ATTEND AUTOMOBILE MEET AT HOTEL GIBSON

Secretary Dilver Belden, of the Greene County Auto Club, expects to attend the two-day convention of the American Automobile Association, which opens Thursday morning at the Hotel Gibson, Cincinnati.

Secretary Belden has been appointed an Ohio delegate to the convention, a distinction that has come to a representative of the local club for the first time.

The local club is affiliated with the state and national organization.

Outstanding among the major problems confronting the association at the convention is compulsory auto insurance, driver's license law, the mounting rate of motor-vehicle taxation and the stressing need of a national unified safety program.

Delegates from the 1,054 motor clubs affiliated with the association will attend the convention.

The motor bus division of the association will open its convention Wednesday and remain in session all day. It will only be a one-day session at which problems affecting the bus industry of the country will be discussed.

DAYTON MAN FINED ON DRUNK CHARGE

Found guilty of intoxication following a hearing in Probate Court Tuesday morning, Carl Meixner, 37, Dayton, O., was fined $25 and costs. He paid the assessment.

A second charge against Meixner of possessing liquor was also heard but a decision is still pending.

Meixner and William LaFong, 24, also of Dayton, were arrested on the Dayton Pike June 16 by O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman.

LaFong was charged with operating a car while intoxicated and with driving with improper lights. He pleaded not guilty and will have a hearing in Probate Court Wednesday.

CONSIDER BIDS

Bids submitted by two local firms for installation of a new type of pump for the Court House heating plant, replacing the steam pump now in use, are being considered by County Commissioners.

TRIPLE BY BLADES ENABLES CARDS TO BEAT CINCINNATI

NEW YORK, June 26—Finding soft pickings in Philadelphia and Boston, the weak sisters of the National League, the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers are gaining ground on the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals and the other western contenders.

Larry Benton won his twelfth victory and Bill Walker, Denver Southpaw, turned in his first win of the season as the Giants swamped the Phils twice, 12 to 4 and 8 to 2. Fred Lindstrom of the Giants swatted nine hits in eleven times at bat, raising his batting average from .316 to .339. Del Bissonette hit his fifteenth homer as Brooklyn outslugged Boston, 9 to 3.

The Cards nosed out Cincinnati 5 to 2, on pinch hitter Blades' triple in the eleventh with the bases loaded.

Washington jumped to fourth place in the American League when their two Southpaws, Braxton and Brown, stopped the Athletics twice, 3 to 2 and 7 to 2. Brown allowed only three hits.

Heinie Manush clouted two homers against Cleveland, but Eddie Morgan's four bagger in the tenth beat the Browns 7 to 4.

With Moe Berg driving in four runs, the White Sox beat Detroit, 8 to 6, and pushed the Tigers back into the cellar.

CARROLL - BINDERS WIN FROM ROTARY IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

Aided by airtight fielding which at times was spectacular, Perry Swindler pitched the Carroll-Binder Co. softball team to a 9 to 5 victory over the Rotary Club in a fast American League game Monday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

The victory, which avenged a defeat by Rotary in the first round, elevated Carroll-Binder to third place in the league, at the same time dropping the Rotarians to fourth position.

Swindler hurled well for the winners and was in trouble in only one inning, the sixth, when his team's defense cracked and the Rotarians pushed four runs across the plate.

Carroll-Binder got to Kimber, Rotary pitcher, for two runs in the first, one in the third, four in the fifth and two more in the ninth. The latter two were not needed but were thrown in for good measure.

First place will be at stake in the battle between the Lang Chevrolet Co. and the Hudson-Essex nine Tuesday night. The former team is in first place by a margin of half a game. Each entry has lost only one game, the single defeat handed to Langs having been administered by Hudson-Essex.

Carroll-Binder lineup: Leahey, 3b; Neville, 2b; Randall, c; Jay, rf; Hoag, ss; Swindler, p; D. Murrell, 1b; Yeakley, lf; Rachford, cf.

Rotary lineup: S. McClellan, lf; Baldner, 3b; Ervin, ss; Kimber, p; McElree, cf; Stout, 1b; Sayre, 2b; McClellan, c; Michael, rf.

Score by innings:

Carroll-Binder	2	0	1	0	4	0	0	0	2—9
Rotary	0	0	0	1	0	0	4	0	0—5

Umpires—Boxwell at plate; J. Adair on bases.

SAYS KONJOLA IS FIRST MEDICINE TO RELIEVE HIM

Nervousness Banished by This Medicine; Also Restored His Appetite.

This celebrated Konjola medicine helps Nature restore the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy normal action. Most of the common disorders of the important functionary organs have been conquered by this new compound. The people of Xenia are strongly indorsing it. Over a hundred testimonials have been received within a few short weeks, all from men and women in this vicinity, and the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store, this city, is kept busy throughout each day explaining this remarkable remedy to local people. One of the latest indorsements came from Mr. Homer Stevens, 627 West Second Street, this city, who made the following statement:

"After the wonderful way Konjola benefited me I cannot help but to praise this medicine to others", said Mr. Stevens, "It strengthened my entire system and restored my health to me.

"Some time ago my system became rundown in general and as the days passed I gradually became worse until I thought nothing would ever help me. I did not have any appetite and although the food I managed to eat did not harm me, at the same time, I was unable to gain any nourishment from it. Of course, this condition soon affected my nerves and the least trifling sound upset me. It was impossible for me to even hold a glass of water in my hands without spilling it. My work became drudgery to me and when I tried to rest my nerves kept me from being still for any length of time. When I went to bed I would roll and toss for hours before going to sleep and then when I did get to sleep I was so restless that by the time I got up the next morning I felt almost as if I had not been to bed at all.

"However, all that is changed now, because I have taken Konjola and this medicine turned out to be exactly what I always needed. With every dose I could almost feel the soothing and healing effect it had on my system and every day I began feeling better. I was steadily gaining in strength until I felt like an entirely different person. My nerves are now in perfect condition and never cause me the least bit of trouble any more. Konjola also restored my appetite and made it possible for me to gain the proper nourishment from the food I eat. At night when I go to bed I know that I will have sound and refreshing sleep. I have more energy and vigor than ever before and it is a pleasure for me to do my work. Since Konjola gave me new and glorious health I feel that it is my duty to tell others about the splendid merits of this medicine and that is my reason for making this public indorsement."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given. —Adv.

MERCHANTS PLAN BIG DOLLAR DAY IN XENIA ON THURSDAY!

Xenia Community Dollar Day will be celebrated Thursday when local merchants will combine in offering bargain attractions.

If present plans are carried out, publicity will be given Dollar Day through the medium of an auto caravan, including about fifteen autos decorated with banners, which will make a tour of a majority of the villages in Greene County Wednesday afternoon.

The banners will each carry the slogan "Xenia Community Dollar Day."

A band may also be obtained and the machines will stop in every town long enough for the musicians to play one selection, after which the caravan will proceed to the next village.

The autos will travel slowly at a speed not exceeding twenty miles an hour to enable everybody to read the banners.

The caravan is expected to be formed in front of the offices of the Greene County Auto Club at 1 p. m. Wednesday. Secretary Delver Belden has agreed to furnish a service car to lead the way.

The route under consideration calls for brief stops at Bellbrook, Spring Valley, Bowersville, Cedarville, Jamestown, Osborn, Fairfield and Yellow Springs.

Special bargain offers will be guaranteed for the sale day as the Xenia Retail Merchants Association is not only sponsoring the Dollar Day but is guaranteeing the bargains.

The committee of the association inspects all sale offers advertised and avoids duplication of offers. Coming so early in the year, Xenia and Greene County bargain hunters are assured the pick of summer stock.

Merchants, handicapped by a late summer, have fresh stocks that they are throwing on the bargain counters for the big sale day Thursday. This insures that the bargains will not be odds, ends and remnants, but first-class merchandise timely in value. Merchants are promising that the Dollar Day will be the most important from the buyers' point of view of any ever held here.

BELDEN TO ATTEND AUTOMOBILE MEET AT HOTEL GIBSON

Secretary Dilver Belden, of the Greene County Auto Club, expects to attend the two-day convention of the American Automobile Association, which opens Thursday morning at the Hotel Gibson, Cincinnati.

Secretary Belden has been appointed an Ohio delegate to the convention, a distinction that has come to a representative of the local club for the first time.

The local club is affiliated with the state and national organization.

Outstanding among the major problems confronting the association at the convention is compulsory auto insurance, driver's license law, the mounting rate of motor-vehicle taxation and the stressing need of a national unified safety program.

Delegates from the 1,054 motor clubs affiliated with the association will attend the convention.

The motor bus division of the association will open its convention Wednesday and remain in session all day. It will only be a one-day session at which problems affecting the bus industry of the country will be discussed.

DAYTON MAN FINED ON DRUNK CHARGE

Found guilty of intoxication following a hearing in Probate Court Tuesday morning, Carl Meixner, 37, Dayton, O., was fined $25 and costs. He paid the assessment.

A second charge against Meixner of possessing liquor was also heard but a decision is still pending.

Meixner and William LaFong, 24, also of Dayton, were arrested on the Dayton Pike June 16 by O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman.

LaFong was charged with operating a car while intoxicated and with driving with improper lights. He pleaded not guilty and will have a hearing in Probate Court Wednesday.

CONSIDER BIDS

Bids submitted by two local firms for installation of a new type of pump for the Court House heating plant, replacing the steam pump now in use, are being considered by County Commissioners.

TRIPLE BY BLADES ENABLES CARDS TO BEAT CINCINNATI

NEW YORK, June 26—Finding soft pickings in Philadelphia and Boston, the weak sisters of the National League, the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers are gaining ground on the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals and the other western contenders.

Larry Benton won his twelfth victory and Bill Walker, Denver Southpaw, turned in his first win of the season as the Giants swamped the Phils twice, 12 to 4 and 8 to 2. Fred Lindstrom of the Giants swatted nine hits in eleven times at bat, raising his batting average from .316 to .339. Del Bissonette hit his fifteenth homer as Brooklyn outslugged Boston, 9 to 3.

The Cards nosed out Cincinnati 5 to 2, on pinch hitter Blades' triple in the eleventh with the bases loaded.

Washington jumped to fourth place in the American League when their two Southpaws, Braxton and Brown, stopped the Athletics twice, 3 to 2 and 7 to 2. Brown allowed only three hits.

Heinie Manush clouted two homers against Cleveland, but Eddie Morgan's four bagger in the tenth beat the Browns 7 to 4.

With Moe Berg driving in four runs, the White Sox beat Detroit, 8 to 6, and pushed the Tigers back into the cellar.

CURTIS HOME IN KANSAS CITY

Here are Senator Charles Curtis, Republican vice-presidential nominee, and a few of his staunchest supporters. Above, Charles K. Curtis, the senator's son, and Mrs. Charles K. Curtis; lower right, Mrs. Webster Knight, his daughter; at the left, Senator Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Edward E. Gann. Center, the Curtis homestead in Kansas City.

Entertains Demos

Visitors to the Democratic convention at Houston are being entertained by Mrs. Dan Moody, above, wife of the governor of the Lone Star state.

A STUDY IN DETERMINATION

Secretary Hoover (left) and Senator Curtis (right) probably never would be mistaken for each other, but they are as alike as two peas in the matter of determined chins. The above study of the nominees of the Republican party is particularly interesting when it is recalled both men were poor boys who fought their way up in the world.

America's Sweetheart Grows Up

IN CURLS!—It was these golden tresses that first won fame for Mary Pickford, the darling of the movies. But her hair had grown so heavy that its weight began to cause headaches, and now she has had it cut short.

BOBBED!—When Mary and Doug left for the West, the former wore her hat well over her ears to hide her new fashionable bob. So a staff artist for International Illustrated News took pen in hand and snipped the curls off Mary's photo just to show you how different she will look.

FOR WILLIS' SENATE SEAT

Chief Justice C. T. Marshall (above), of the Ohio Supreme Court, Republican, has announced his candidacy for the vacancy in the U. S. Senate caused by the death of Frank B. Willis. Cyrus Locher, Democrat, has been appointed to fill the unexpired term, and has already announced his candidacy to succeed himself, will oppose the justice.

Romantic Rise of an East Side Urchin

It couldn't come true anywhere else in the world—this romantic rise of a barefoot urchin selling papers on the East Side to be governor of New York and a leading candidate for the presidency of the United States. Here is the latest photographic study of Governor Al Smith against a pictorial background of his colorful life done by Louis Biedermann, famous artist.

How Hoover Carved Out a Career

Here is a picture of the Republican nominee for President as he appears today against a background of his own romantic career. The boy Hoover had few opportunities in life that he did not make for himself. He was born poor, worked his way through college and then, with a mining engineer's degree, he started out to conquer his world. Louis Biedermann, famous artist, graphically illustrates the many-sided man who is better known for his achievements than any other living American.

(International Illustrated News)

ROYAL ROMANCE ON THE ROCKS

After a brilliant wedding, less than three months ago, Princess Anne of France and the Duke D'Apulia are reported living apart. The princess is reported to be determined to have the marriage annulled in order to marry the man she loves.

Milestones In Curtis' Life

No more picturesque individual than Charley Curtis of Kansas has ever come out of the west to take his rightful place in the Washington scene. In his youth he shined shoes, sold papers and ran errands; he punched cows, helped support his family and worked his way through college. And he won his spurs as a statesman when he smoothed the ruffled plumage of insurgent Republican senators and brought them back into the party's fold. Above, left to right, Curtis at 16, at 18 and at 19. Below, at 21, at 24 and as he is today, his party's choice for the vice-presidency.

CONGRESSMAN FITZGERALD TO SPEAK HERE FOURTH OF JULY

R. G. Fitzgerald.

Congressman Roy G. Fitzgerald, Dayton, of the Third District, will be the speaker July 4 at the Community Picnic in Shawnee Park, it was announced Tuesday.

Representative Theodore Burton, Cleveland, who was invited to speak at the picnic, was unable to attend due to conflicting dates with other engagements.

Senator S. D. Fess, Yellow Springs, will be invited to attend the picnic as a guest and will probably give a short talk.

Other features are being arranged for the program. Efforts are being made to obtain a home-talent offering to augment Congressman Fitzgerald's address to begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Games and contests will amuse the picnickers during the afternoon and in the evening, the fireworks will attract many to the park.

A cafeteria supper will be furnished on the grounds, and any intending to attend are asked not to bring their family picnic baskets.

KITCHEN HAS STORY PLOTS

Mrs. Henry W. Thayer

By CLARK KINNAIRD

Staff Writer for Central Press and The Gazette

CHATHAM, N. J., June 2?. — Housewives are advised to keep their mind's eye open as they bustle around the kitchen. That piece of ice melting in the sink, the pot that is boiling over on the stove, the cockroach that has invaded the pantry—may be the germ of a "best-selling" mystery story.

Mrs. Henry W. Thayer, author under the name of Lee Thayer of a dozen widely sold detective novels, works out all her plots while busy with household tasks in her home here. She no longer has to do her housework, but she does because drudgery makes it easier for her to think about crimes and their perpetration.

Mrs. Thayer was noted as an interior decorator and artist before she took up detective story authorship. Reading mystery stories was one of her diversions.

"One night as I rode home on a bus, I unaccountably began to commit my first "murder" with an office neighbor as a victim. I worked out what seemed to be a perfect way to kill the person without fear of detection. In trying to pick flaws in the scheme I got the idea of setting it down as a story."

That was in 1919, and the novel was "The Mystery of the Thirteenth Floor." She has been "committing murders" ever since.

"My best ideas come to me when I am busy cooking or chatting with a neighbor over the garden hedge," Mrs. Thayer explains. "Just a cold potato in the icebox, a neighbor's cow afflicted with lice or a bit of ticket punched by a street car conductor may give me the necessary germ of an idea for a story.

"I don't seek out real criminals. Most actual crimes are too sordid to be entertaining. Detective story clues must be plausible. I find the detached atmosphere of the suburban home far more conducive to the creation of mystifying murder plots than a newspaper office or police court."

Mrs. Thayer is now 54, and has been married eighteen years without any desire, she says, to make her husband the victim of one of her "perfect crimes." She was associated with Dora Wheeler Keith in the decorations of the women's building of the Chicago Exposition in 1893. Later she became noted as the designer of book covers.

CONGRESSMAN FITZGERALD TO SPEAK HERE FOURTH OF JULY

R. G. Fitzgerald.

Congressman Roy G. Fitzgerald, Dayton, of the Third District, will be the speaker July 4 at the Community Picnic in Shawnee Park, it was announced Tuesday.

Representative Theodore Burton, Cleveland, who was invited to speak at the picnic, was unable to attend due to conflicting dates with other engagements.

Senator S. D. Fess, Yellow Springs, will be invited to attend the picnic as a guest and will probably give a short talk.

Other features are being arranged for the program. Efforts are being made to obtain a home-talent offering to augment Congressman Fitzgerald's address to begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Games and contests will amuse the picnickers during the afternoon and in the evening, the fireworks will attract many to the park.

A cafeteria supper will be furnished on the grounds, and any intending to attend are asked not to bring their family picnic baskets.

KITCHEN HAS STORY PLOTS

Mrs. Henry W. Thayer

By CLARK KINNAIRD

Staff Writer for Central Press and The Gazette

CHATHAM, N. J., June 2?. — Housewives are advised to keep their mind's eye open as they bustle around the kitchen. That piece of ice melting in the sink, the pot that is boiling over on the stove, the cockroach that has invaded the pantry—may be the germ of a "best-selling" mystery story.

Mrs. Henry W. Thayer, author under the name of Lee Thayer of a dozen widely sold detective novels, works out all her plots while busy with household tasks in her home here. She no longer has to do her housework, but she does because drudgery makes it easier for her to think about crimes and their perpetration.

Mrs. Thayer was noted as an interior decorator and artist before she took up detective story authorship. Reading mystery stories was one of her diversions.

"One night as I rode home on a bus, I unaccountably began to commit my first "murder" with an office neighbor as a victim. I worked out what seemed to be a perfect way to kill the person without fear of detection. In trying to pick flaws in the scheme I got the idea of setting it down as a story."

That was in 1919, and the novel was "The Mystery of the Thirteenth Floor." She has been "committing murders" ever since.

"My best ideas come to me when I am busy cooking or chatting with a neighbor over the garden hedge," Mrs. Thayer explains. "Just a cold potato in the icebox, a neighbor's cow afflicted with lice or a bit of ticket punched by a street car conductor may give me the necessary germ of an idea for a story.

"I don't seek out real criminals. Most actual crimes are too sordid to be entertaining. Detective story clues must be plausible. I find the detached atmosphere of the suburban home far more conducive to the creation of mystifying murder plots than a newspaper office or police court."

Mrs. Thayer is now 54, and has been married eighteen years without any desire, she says, to make her husband the victim of one of her "perfect crimes." She was associated with Dora Wheeler Keith in the decorations of the women's building of the Chicago Exposition in 1893. Later she became noted as the designer of book covers.

CROWDS SEE MOTION PICTURE OF WILLYS AUTOMOBILE PLANT

Between 600 and 700 people, using free tickets distributed by The Greene County Hardware Co., local Willys-Knight agents, saw the industrial feature film "The Silent Knight" at the Bijou Theater at two performances Monday night.

The crowd exceeded expectations of the management and the crowd was pleased with the showing. Robert Shannon, who attended the first show and Ernest Hutchison, who attended the second show, were given trade certificates that are valuable for tradeins on a new Willys car at the Xenia agency.

The picture was brought here through an arrangement with the Willys-Overland Co., Toledo, where the film was made showing the making of a Willys automobile from the start to the finished product. The film showed careful attention to continuity and detail and was entertaining as well as instructive.

It pictured from start to finish the hundreds of operations that take place in producing a finished motor car, starting with the sorting of the material in the store yards and ending when the finished car left the plant under its own power. The audience was practically carried on a tour of the auto making plant, through all its divisions, beginning with the Pontiac, Mich., plant where Knight engines were seen in the making and ending with the main plant at Toledo. Shots taken from the film "Simba", showing the use of Willys-Knight motor cars by Martin Johnson, African explorer, in the jungles of Africa, was an added interesting feature.

INVITED TO OHIO

Officials of the American Institute of Cooperation will be given an invitation to hold its 1929 sessions on the campus of the Ohio State University, according to word received by the Greene County Farm Bureau from L. B. Palmer, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and vice president of the Institute. Sessions this year will be held at the University of California beginning July 9 and lasting four weeks. The proposal to secure the institute for Ohio next year will be backed by farm organizations of the state and University officials.

This year's session will be the fourth conducted by the institute which is attended by cooperative leaders from all sections of the country. Among speakers are Secretary William Jardine and specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture and cooperative leaders from all parts of the United States and Canada. California cooperatives will be visited and their methods studied.

Word of the success of the mutual automobile insurance company for farmers only which has been built by the Ohio Farm Bureau has spread to still another state, say leaders of the Greene County Farm Bureau. News of the formation of a similar organization in New Hampshire has just been received at the county office here.

Not only is the New Hampshire farmers' new mutual patterned after the Ohio organization, but leaders of the mutual in this state have been asked by officials of the New Hampshire Farm Bureau to direct the organization in their state. Ezra C. Anstaett, general manager of the Ohio company, has been named general manager of the one in New Hampshire, and S. O. Walker, formerly of Carroll County and a special agent for the Ohio mutual has been named to direct the building of an agency force for the New England state.

The Ohio organization received more than 1,900 policies from Ohio farmers during a single week.

The first cattle from range country to come to Ohio feed lots through the national cooperative pool of producers' associations wede placed in Ohio recently, Greene County Farm Bureau officials report. Ohio's stock men received 500 of a lot of 3500 yearling cattle which were brought from the producing territory by the National Producer's Feeder Pool Association of which E. C. Rector of Pickaway County is president.

The cattle coming to Ohio went to sixteen farmers in Fayette, Pickaway, and Scioto Counties. Three loads went to Nelson Dunlap of Ross County, father of Renick Dunlap, assistant secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The shipment, coming from Texas, is the first of many similar shipments of cattle and lambs for feeding purposes which will be brought into Ohio this year through cooperative livestock associations of the state.

The annual summer conference of county farm bureau presidents and secretaries will be held in Columbus on August 8 and 9, it has been announced here.

MARRIAGE LICENSES INCREASE ANNUAL PROBATE REPORT SHOWS

Twenty more marriage licenses were issued during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1928, than in the preceding twelve-month period, according to a report prepared by Deputy Probate Judge Allegra Hawes for submission to the secretary of state.

The report is a table of the number and date of marriages by months, letters of guardianship and administration issued, the number of persons committed to hospitals for the insane and epileptics and reform schools for the last fiscal year.

The report disclosed 239 marriage licenses were issued in the last fiscal year as compared with 219 for the preceding period. As in the preceding twelve months, June, popularly known as the favorite month for weddings, came off second best in the number of licenses granted.

August showed the way with twenty-eight licenses followed by June with one less. January proved the least alluring month with only seven. January also brought up the rear in the preceding year with eight licenses, December leading with thirty and June runnerup with twenty-nine.

Fewer estates were administered upon in the last year than in the preceding reckoning, the figures being 138 and 157, respectively. In the last year fifty-six wills were admitted to probate, forty-seven letters testamentary and ninety-one letters of administration were issued. In the preceding period, sixty-four wills were probated, forty-nine letters testimentary and 198 letters of administration were issued.

Letters of guardianship issued also experienced a drop of from eighty-seven in 1927 to thirty-three for the last estimate.

The report further reveals that in the last year nineteen persons were committed to the Dayton State Hospital, three to the Ohio Hospital for Epileptics, four to the Boys' Industrial School and one to the Girls' Industrial Home.

In the preceding twelve months, seventeen persons were sent to the Dayton State Hospital, three to the epileptic institution, five to the boys' reform school and three to the girls' corrective institution.

NOTE SUIT FILED; SALE CONFIRMED; OTHER COURT NEWS

An alleged balance due on a promissory note is made the basis of a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by John T. Harbine, Jr., against Thomas and Mamie Lawson, seeking foreclosure of a chattel mortgage.

The plaintiff claims the defendants obtained a loan of $60 and that a certain amount which the court is asked to determine, still remains due.

CONFIRM SALE

Sale of property to the plaintiff for $3,300 has been confirmed by the court in the case of The McDowell and Torrence Lumber Co. against Albert W. Black and others in Comomn Pleas Court.

According to the entry, the purchaser has paid to The Peoples Building and Savings Co., one of the defendants, $3,105, the amount due on its mortgage. After deduction of costs and taxes, the court ordered that the remaining balance of $128.68 be applied on the judgment of the purchaser.

DEFAULT OPENED

In the case of The Home Building and Savings Co. against George W. Quinn and others in Common Pleas Court, since R. R. Grieve, a defendant, is in default for answer or demurrer, the court has ordered default opened and Grieve is given leave to file a pleading within five days.

DISMISS CASES

The following four suits have been ordered dismissed for lack of prosecution in Common Pleas Court:

The American Loan and Realty Co. against Henrietta Lewis and others.

Ella M. Hughes against William H. Hughes.

The American Loan and Realty Co. against Wilson H. Minor and others.

C. A. Caliman and others against Lee J. Purnell and others.

VALUE ESTATES

Gross value of the estate of F. P. Hastings, deceased, is estimated at $21,710 in Probate Court. Debts and the cost of administration total $21,735, leaving the estate without net value.

Estate of Julia Sanborn, deceased, has an estimated gross value of $1,408.50, composed entirely of personal property. The cost of administration is placed at $345.50, leaving a net value of $1,163.

Gross value of the estate of the late John Davis is placed at $2,183. Debts and the cost of administration exactly equal this amount, leaving no net value.

APPOINT GUARDIAN

W. A. Miller has been appointed guardian of Clarence E. Deger, John Unger and Ethel Unger, minor defendants in the case of Bertha Unger, as executrix of the estate of John Unger, deceased, against John Unger and others in Probate Court.

The court ordered private sale of real estate belonging to the estate. The property was appraised at $2,862.25.

The World And All

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

TORNADOES

The United States government is very helpful to its individual citizens in a great variety of ways. But once in a while it puts forth an effort at helpfulness that resembles nothing so much as throwing a cast-iron life-preserver to a drowning man.

The other day I read a leaflet from the Press Service of the Office of Information of the United States Department of Agriculture that gave me a laugh that I carried it around with me all day.

It was headed: "Tornado-resistant Buildings Possible, Forest Products Engineer Asserts."

It quoted one L. V. Teesdale, of the Forest Products Laboratory of the United States Department of Agriculture. Here, in brief, and shorn of useless verbiage, is Mr. Teesdale's grand idea:

Houses and other buildings should be constructed with windows or panels that would open outward. There should be outward-opening vents in the roofs, too. Hinged panels may be used in the spaces between windowsills and floors. Special skylights or hinged roof panels are suggested for roofs.

Mr. Teesale has figured all this out as a result of deep thinking upon data furnished by the St. Louis tornado last September. The reasoning is simple—too simple. Many buildings explode from within during tornadoes, on account of the sudden drop in external air pressure. Therefore, make windows that open outward easily, and the house won't explode.

Professor Teesdale has done a fine job of working out a theory. It makes a beautiful press service release.

BUT—did Professor Teesdale ever see a tornado? The chances are at least ten thousand to one that he hasn't seen one at very close range, anyhow. And you can't imagine a tornado, Professor. You have to see it, hear it and feel it before you realize how foolish your gentle theory of outward-swinging windows is.

MARRIAGE LICENSES INCREASE ANNUAL PROBATE REPORT SHOWS

Twenty more marriage licenses were issued during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1928, than in the preceding twelve-month period, according to a report prepared by Deputy Probate Judge Allegra Hawes for submission to the secretary of state.

The report is a table of the number and date of marriages by months, letters of guardianship and administration issued, the number of persons committed to hospitals for the insane and epileptics and reform schools for the last fiscal year.

The report disclosed 239 marriage licenses were issued in the last fiscal year as compared with 219 for the preceding period. As in the preceding twelve months, June, popularly known as the favorite month for weddings, came off second best in the number of licenses granted.

August showed the way with twenty-eight licenses followed by June with one less. January proved the least alluring month with only seven. January also brought up the rear in the preceding year with eight licenses, December leading with thirty and June runnerup with twenty-nine.

Fewer estates were administered upon in the last year than in the preceding reckoning, the figures being 138 and 157, respectively. In the last year fifty-six wills were admitted to probate, forty-seven letters testamentary and ninety-one letters of administration were issued. In the preceding period sixty-four wills were probated, forty-nine letters testimentary and 198 letters of administration were issued.

Letters of guardianship issued also experienced a drop of from eighty-seven in 1927 to thirty-three for the last estimate.

The report further reveals that in the last year nineteen persons were committed to the Dayton State Hospital, three to the Ohio Hospital for Epileptics, four to the Boys' Industrial School and one to the Girls' Industrial Home.

In the preceding twelve months seventeen persons were sent to the Dayton State Hospital, three to the epilepdic institution, five to the boys' reform school and three to the girls' corrective institution.

NOTE SUIT FILED; SALE CONFIRMED; OTHER COURT NEWS

An alleged balance due on a promissory note is made the basis of a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by John T. Harbine, Jr., against Thomas and Mamie Lawson, seeking foreclosure of a chattel mortgage.

The plaintiff claims the defendants obtained a loan of $60 and that a certain amount which the court is asked to determine, still remains due.

CONFIRM SALE

Sale of property to the plaintiff for $3,300 has been confirmed by the court in the case of The McDowell and Torrence Lumber Co. against Albert W. Black and others in Comomn Pleas Court.

According to the entry, the purchaser has paid to The Peoples Building and Savings Co., one of the defendants, $3,105, the amount due on its mortgage. After deduction of costs and taxes, the court ordered that the remaining balance of $128.68 be applied on the judgment of the purchaser.

DEFAULT OPENED

In the case of The Home Building and Savings Co. against George W. Quinn and others in Common Pleas Court, since R. R. Grieve, a defendant, is in default for answer or demurrer, the court has ordered default opened and Grieve is given leave to file a pleading within five days.

DISMISS CASES

The following four suits have been ordered dismissed for lack of prosecution in Common Pleas Court:

The American Loan and Realty Co. against Henrietta Lewis and others.

Ella M. Hughes against William H. Hughes.

The American Loan and Realty Co. against Wilson H. Minor and others.

C. A. Caliman and others against Lee J. Purnell and others.

VALUE ESTATES

Gross value of the estate of F. P. Hastings, deceased, is estimated at $21,710 in Probate Court. Debts and the cost of administration total $21,735, leaving the estate without net value.

Estate of Julia Sanborn, deceased, has an estimated gross value of $1,408.50, composed entirely of personal property. The cost of administration is placed at $345.50, leaving a net value of $1,163.

Gross value of the estate of the late John Davis is placed at $2,183. Debts and the cost of administration exactly equal this amount, leaving no net value.

APPOINT GUARDIAN

W. A. Miller has been appointed guardian of Clarence E. Deger, John Unger and Ethel Unger, minor defendants in the case of Bertha Unger, as executrix of the estate of John Unger, deceased, against John Unger and others in Probate Court.

The court ordered private sale of real estate belonging to the estate. The property was appraised at $2,862.25.

Writer Learned Mark Hanna Was Friendly Though Called "Hard-Boiled"

Mark Hanna, friend and backer of William B. McKinley, inset.

(This is the second of a series of stories on presidents and their wives—the series being termed "In Memory's Portrait Gallery" by the writer, Idah McGlone Gibson. Mrs. Gibson personally interviewed the celebrites of whom she writes so entertainingly.)

By IDAH McGLONE GIBSON
Specially Written for Central Press and Gazette

Today the words—a business administration—are considered by many the greatest encomium that can be made upon the four or eight years of a president's incumbency of the White House. But at the time of the McKinley campaign Mark Hanna, of Cleveland, O., who had the reputation of being always a hard-headed politician, and a believer in big business, probably had more abuse hurled at him than any other man connected with politics since the Civil War.

Day after day Homer Davenport depicted Mr. Hanna in cartoon, representing him as a coarse featured fat man, clad in a suit made of American dollars. At that time it was thought a disgrace for any man connected with the politics of our country, to be rich.

Mark Hanna was supposed to be only the friend of the dollar, and everything possible was done to antagonize labor and capital. Nevertheless, with the McKinley administration a prosperity was inaugurated which, whether it was due to Mr. Hanna's methods or Mr. McKinley's suave belief in them, soon made the slogan "A full dinner pail" a demonstrable fact.

A Misunderstood Man

Probably no man in America was less understood than Mark Hanna.

A national political boss, he became United States senator also. During the entire McKinley regime, and for sometime afterward, he was universally supposed to be what we of today would designate as "hard boiled." He was a thorough business man, but had a great heart for all of that.

In all my reportorial experience I was never treated with greater courtesy than by him.

No one that I ever have met had a more sincere hatred for hypocrisy and no one greater contempt for the hypocrite. No busy man was more intolerant of bores. He always had an unlighted cigar in his mouth, and by it one could gauge pretty clearly if what one was saying interested him.

As long as that cigar remained unlighted you had the attention of Mr. Hanna in your project, but, if for one moment, he hunted for a match in one of his numerous pockets, you were foolish to wait until he lighted his half chewed weed; you had better make as graceful an exit as possible, you had lost your case and no argument could awaken further interest in it.

Finds Hanna Friendly

If he found you merited his confidence, you immediately knew that Mark Hanna had a great capacity for friendship as well as friendliness. I once was sent by a Philadelphia paper to Cleveland, to interview him on the anniversary of McKinley's death from an assassin's bullet. As I went up in the elevator I noted one of the most popular society women of Cleveland, who was jostled and pushed aside in the doorway by a big, burly, sinister looking negro, in dirty overalls and shirt and muddy boots.

"I want Hanna!" The sullen voice sent a distinct shudder through the others in the car. We all remembered this was the anniversary of the McKinley tragedy.

Instinctively the society woman, who was evidently going to Mr. Hanna's office also, stepped aside and let the negro pass in front of her.

"I want Hanna!" he said again.

"This lady has an appointment."

"Well, you tell him that Dave is here and wants him."

Motioning the lady to follow, the attendant opened the door to Mr. Hanna's office. She was inside less than five minutes, during which the colored man grew more and more impatient, and almost shoved the society woman against the doorway in his hurry to enter as she was coming out. His visit, too, was short, and he looked more menacing than ever when he came back through the reception room.

Aids Colored Man

At a nod from the attendant I followed him in.

Mark Hanna was standing near a table upon which was a great bowl of pink carnations—the McKinley memorial flower.

Somewhat to my surprise when he wheeled about and came toward me he had one of the blossoms in his hand.

"What do you want?" The words were brusk, but his smile made them kindly.

"First, I want to know what that colored man who was just in here wanted. He looked rather ugly to me."

"That was Dave, a man who used to work for President McKinley, at Canton. His wife died last night and he wanted enough money to bury her."

He fumbled about, as though looking for a match. I knew he wanted to be alone and I hurriedly said, "I will come back tomorrow if you will let me."

Without a word, he thrust the flower that he still had in his hand into mine.

As I went down in the elevator, I noticed that even the boy was wearing a pink carnation in commemoration of the anniversary of the martyred president.

PRESIDENT MAKER

Mark Hanna, friend and backer of William B. McKinley, Inset.

(This is the second of a series of stories on presidents and their wives—the series being termed "In Memory's Portrait Gallery" by the writer, Idah McGlone Gibson. Mrs. Gibson personally interviewed the celebrites of whom she writes so entertainingly.)

By IDAH McGLONE GIBSON
Specially Written for Central Press and Gazette

Today the words—a business administration—are considered by many the greatest encomium that can be made upon the four or eight years of a president's incumbency of the White House. But at the time of the McKinley campaign Mark Hanna, of Cleveland, O., who had the reputation of being always a hard-headed politician, and a believer in big business, probably had more abuse hurled at him than any other man connected with politics since the Civil War.

Day after day Homer Davenport depicted Mr. Hanna in cartoon, representing him as a coarse featured fat man, clad in a suit made of American dollars. At that time it was thought a disgrace for any man connected with the politics of our country, to be rich.

Mark Hanna was supposed to be only the friend of the dollar, and everything possible was done to antagonize labor and capital. Nevertheless, with the McKinley administration a prosperity was inaugurated which, whether it was due to Mr. Hanna's methods or Mr. McKinley's suave belief in them, soon made the slogan "A full dinner pail" a demonstrable fact.

A Misunderstood Man

Probably no man in America was less understood than Mark Hanna.

A national political boss, he became United States senator also. During the entire McKinley regime, and for sometime afterward, he was universally supposed to be what we of today would designate as "hard boiled." He was a thorough business man, but had a great heart for all of that.

In all my reportorial experience I was never treated with greater courtesy than by him.

No one that I ever have met had a more sincere hatred for hypocrisy and no one greater contempt for the hypocrite. No busy man was more intolerant of bores. He always had an unlighted cigar in his mouth, and by it one could gauge pretty clearly if what one was saying interested him.

As long as that cigar remained unlighted you had the attention of Mr. Hanna in your project, but, if for one moment, he hunted for a match in one of his numerous pockets, you were foolish to wait until he lighted his half chewed weed; you had better make as graceful an exit as possible, you had lost your case and no argument could awaken further interest in it.

Finds Hanna Friendly

If he found you merited his confidence, you immediately knew that Mark Hanna had a great capacity for friendship as well as friendliness. I once was sent by a Philadelphia paper to Cleveland, to interview him on the anniversary of McKinley's death from an assassin's bullet. As I went up in the elevator I noted one of the most popular society women of Cleveland, who was jostled and pushed aside in the doorway by a big, burly, sinister looking negro, in dirty overalls and shirt and muddy boots.

"I want Hanna!" The sullen voice sent a distinct shudder through the others in the car. We all remembered this was the anniversary of the McKinley tragedy.

Instinctively the society woman, who was evidently going to Mr. Hanna's office also, stepped aside and let the negro pass in front of her.

"I want Hanna!" he said again.

"This lady has an appointment."

"Well, you tell him that Dave is here and wants him."

Motioning the lady to follow, the attendant opened the door to Mr. Hanna's office. She was inside less than five minutes, during which the colored man grew more and more impatient, and almost shoved the society woman against the doorway in his hurry to enter as she was coming out. His visit, too, was short, and he looked more menacing than ever when he came back through the reception room.

Aids Colored Man

At a nod from the attendant I followed him in.

Mark Hanna was standing near a table upon which was a great bowl of pink carnations—the McKinley memorial flower.

Somewhat to my surprise when he wheeled about and came toward me he had one of the blossoms in his hand.

"What do you want?" The words were brusk, but his smile made them kindly.

"First, I want to know what that colored man who was just in here wanted. He looked rather ugly to me."

"That was Dave, a man who used to work for President McKinley, at Canton. His wife died last night and he wanted enough money to bury her."

He fumbled about, as though looking for a match. I knew he wanted to be alone and I hurriedly said, "I will come back tomorrow if you will let me."

Without a word, he thrust the flower that he still had in his hand into mine.

As I went down in the elevator, I noticed that even the boy was wearing a pink carnation in commemoration of the anniversary of the martyred president.

HARMONY PLATFORM, EARLY NOMINATION, COAL OF CONVENTION

ally obligated to wage a fight because of the instructions given the Texas delegation by the state convention. He will be supported by a number of southern leaders, among them Josephus Daniels, who, as secretary of the navy during the Wilson administration, dried up the navy. Daniels takes the position that any evasion on the prohibition question would injure the party in years to come.

A moist plank or even an evasive plank," he said today, "would be ruinous. It would take us fifty years to regain the position we have held in the past. It would mean a permanent loss to the Democratic party of all the dry states. It would be positively fatal. If an effort is made to put in a wet plank we'll stay here all summer and fight it."

Inasmuch as the Smith leaders, such as Frank Hague, of New Jersey, Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and George Brennan of Illinois, have abandoned any idea of fighting for a wet plank—if they ever really entertained the notion—Daniels' threat to "stay here all summer and fight it" seemed superfluous.

Only on one other plank in the platform did there appear to be much debate. That is on farm relief. Most of the southerners in congress voted for the McNary-Haugen bill and hence it is likely that this convention will take considerably stronger stand for the farmer than did the Republicans at Kansas City. The farm people who unsuccessfully tried to crash the Kansas City convention are here in force, making good their threat that they would come to Houston if turned down at Kansas City. They have been welcomed with open arms to this hot, swarming city.

"Give us a dry plank and a real farm plank and we will win this election," said Sen. William J. Harris of Georgia. His opinion reflected the general opinion of southern leaders on the ground here.

Whether there will be a first ballot nomination of Governor Smith depends upon the action of several favorite sons—principally Pomerene in Ohio, Woollen in Indiana and Ayres in Kansas.

The Ohio caucus resulted in a decision to support Pomerene on the first ballot but on the second the forty-eight delegates will go forty-two for Smith and six for Reed. Before balloting time begins, however, it is possible the plan to vote for Pomerene will be abandoned.

Eighteen of Woollen's votes in the Indiana will be tallied for Smith on the second ballot, if not on the first, according to the delegation leaders.

The betting today on the vice presidency, however, favored Senator Robinson.

COUZENS CLAIMING SENATE IMMUNITY

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Pleading senatorial immunity, Senator Couzens (R) of Michigan, today had before the district Supreme Court a motion to dismiss a libel suit for $500,000 filed against him by H. P. Cochrane, a tax expert.

Cochrane asserted that Couzens made slanderous statements relative to his business methods.

NEW YORKERS NOT THRILLED BY BROWN DERBY

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26—The Al Smith "brown derby" splashed into the convention maelstrom today, creating excitement among everybody but the New York delegation.

Young Texans grabbed for the derbies when the venders brought them out in the wake of the arrival of Smith's own cohorts.

Other delegates started or cheered, but still the New Yorkers didn't.

Indeed, the entire Tammany delegation seemed to step out of the character assigned to it by long tradition.

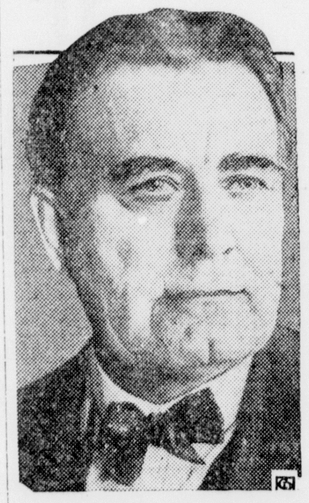
A Texas band played "Sidewalks of New York" with vim, but the Gothamites didn't even enthuse over it.

In all the eddies of the convention with emblematic donkies, "official" canes, all kinds of souvenirs and all kinds of songs being sold and sung, the New Yorkers displayed littel interest.

The delegates coming for excitement were disappointed and the Texans were amazed.

But the Manhattan cohorts were living up to their promise to bring the most somber delegation of all to Houston and keep it that way—until after "A" Smith is nominated.

Cabinet Possibility



Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, is being mentioned as the next secretary of state should Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, win the November election.

RESTLESS LOVE

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Ackland Center, a little old town in New England, is proud of its beauty and traditions. But the modern world is fast crowding in on its peace. Finally a notorious roadhouse, Jazzland, is opened by a gang of bootleggers. Liquor flows. Girls of the town are lured there. Editor Hamilton Pew of "The Weekly Age" fights Jazzland, and is shot to death, the identity of his assailants never being ascertained. Homer Pew, his brother, takes up the fight in the newspaper. Stella Bagot, a home-town girl who has made good in New York as a magazine writer, comes homes to write about the fight against the gang. She is driven to Ackland by Ernie Hallam, a married man, much in love with her. He wants her to meet him in Boston. Homer tells Stella how his brother was shot down at Jazzland.

Joe Harmer, Ackland's political boss, calls on Homer to find out if he is going to keep on with the paper, now that his brother is gone.

Homer is called to the phone and hears the same mysterious voice that warned his brother to give up the fight against Jazzland. He endeavors to trace the call.

Homer is beat up that night when he puts his car in the garage at home. Stella races to his side.

Stella writes a sizzling editorial for the paper upon the attack.

Later that night she wearily gets into the Ford and returns to her home up the state road.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII

She drove in and put the car up, rolling the barn door to as quietly as she could. Weakly, then, she leaned against it and looked about. How quietly the old place felt. She lifted her eyes and stared at a patch of velvet sky between the overhanging elms. The stars were cold and seemed a long way off. Another sudden wild thought came, a still more unsettling thought: "What if I should go and fall idiotically in love with that thoroughbred boy? I might. Those things happen. He wouldn't look at a Bagot, of course. Not here in Ackland. I'd have to be in New York to impress him. He'd just be decent. And God knows what would become of me!"

A sob shook her. This wouldn't do at all. What was the matter with her! She stood erect and breathed deeply of the night air. She simply must get some sort of hold on herself. If she was to sleep, even.

A car stopped out on the road. She could hear low voices. Were they after her, too? Well, what of it? Action, even danger, would bring relief of a sort. Homer wasn't cowed. He wasn't even nerving himself up; just casually, rather wonderfully, going straight ahead. She'd hit on the precise word thoroughbred. That's what he was.

Out there on the road somebody was trying to shut a car door softly. She could hear that. Then the machine drove away. She walked deliberately behind the lilacs toward the porch. Not quite casually, as Homer would have done. He'd simply not be thinking of himself at all. She couldn't help thinking of herself.

The path led by the shed, past the open arch where cords of wood were always neatly piled. A figure stood in the shadow of the arch. Stella stopped short. The figure began climbing; reaching up and catching the ends of slightly projecting sticks. Then she saw that it was a girl. She moved forward.

"Martha!"

The girl dropped to the ground. "Stella! My word, but you scared me!"

"You don't have to climb up there. The front door was left open for me."

"Oh, but I do. You see, my door's locked on the inside."

"You can get through my room to the roof of the shed."

This was reasonable. They moved slowly toward the porch. Stella said: "Sit down a minute. They can't hear us out here."

Side by side, on the top step, they fell silent. Then Stella asked: "What are you up to, anyway?"

"Well.....you have to have a little fun."

"It's all hours."

"Oh, yes. It's late."

"You know how the folks would feel."

"Well.....oh, they don't understand! You know that."

"It isn't exactly square."

"Well.....How about you? You're pretty late yourself."

"I've been helping down at the Age office. Homer Pew was pretty badly beaten up tonight by that Jazzland crowd. We had to stop the presses and get the story in."

Martha's breath seemed to catch. She glanced swiftly at this handsome, quietly young woman who was so completely the elder sister; then turned as swiftly away.

"You've been drinking, Martha."

"Not much. I never take much."

"On the loose, aren't you? Hm! I'll admit it's rather a shock. I suppose you've been off dancing somewhere."

"Yes, I have." Then hotly: "I don't see that you're in a position to talk. You went away. And you know well enough you just about broke their hearts doing it. I suppose you never drink anything yourself."

"Oh, come, Martha!" She'd have to say something. The girl saw it all wrong. She herself had never run wild, flapper fashion. Quietly, guardedly, she went on: "I went to college, Martha. I worked harder than you have any idea of. And then when I got to New York I took a responsible job."

"That's all very well. There you are, down in New York, living your own life. How do we know what you do?"

Stella sighed. "Of course," she said, "there's no good in sitting here quarreling. We'd better go to bed."

"You're not fair, Stella. They've kept me home here. It's been like a prison. Doing housework and tending the stand. Never any fun. They've taken it out of me to balance up for what you did to them. Oh, don't think I can't see it! I'm wise! Well, they've got only themselves to blame."

"What do you mean by that?"

"It started right here. Because they kept me home. Mother made me go out to the stand one day when I didn't want to. I was reading. A good book." This with a touch of bitter mockery. "Mother was visiting with Mrs. Shirlaw. So I did as I was told. It was this boy and a friend of his. In a swell car. They bought all the strawberries. But that wasn't what they wanted. They wanted me. They'd heard about me from another fellow who drives along this road.....Well, I'm going up."

"You'll find a box of candy on the hall table. Take it along."

"Oh.....thanks, Stella. Well, I'll say good morning. Are you going to tell on me?"

"No. But I can't promise not to do some thinking about you. I'm afraid your point of view is all wrong, Martha."

"Perhaps." The girl rose, gave her a defiant look, then tiptoed into the house.

Stella sat alone. There was drama, even potential tragedy, in the flippant outbreak of this eighteen-year-old. It was a stab at the home their parents had labored for half a life-time to build and hold together. True enough, she herself, had given it the first stab. But she'd been, at least, earnest in her own flight. Whatever had developed since, in the way of personal entanglements, had been pretty inevitable. Really the sort of problems that might present themselves to any attractive girl who had her own way to make. But however you figured it, there wasn't much left of that home. Just a place; and an aging couple; and illusion.

Her thoughts kept flitting back to the Pews. Those crisp editorials of Young Ham's came to mind. Here was his main thesis to the life; not only the village invaded by that pressing outside world, but the home itself. You couldn't protect girls in the home. Not any more. With jazz pouring provocatively in over the radio and "swell" cars stopping at the door.

She dragged herself up to her room. Something had to be done about Ernest. Some course thought out. He seemed a curiously remote figure. But he'd be waiting, from ten to eleven, for her voice.

She couldn't think it out. Not now. So she wrote on a sheet of paper: "Please wake me at ten—" and pinned it on the outside of the door. She'd have to allow time to dress and get down to the center. Call him from a booth at Breckeridge's. It would never do to talk with him over the house telephone. Mother would be hovering, and would worry if she shut herself in to talk.

PEACHES BROWNING AGAIN IN COURT; WANTS DOWER RIGHTS

NEW YORK, June 26.—Peaches and Daddy are in court again. The youthful Frances Heenan Browning, who is still a minor although two years have passed since her romance with the elderly Browning, has started a fight for her dower rights.

Through her attorney, former Surrugate Daniel F. Cohalon, Peaches today applied to Supreme Court Justice Lyden for the appointment of her mother Carolyn M. Heenan as (guardian ad litum).

Mrs. Heenan was appointed by Justice Lyden as Peaches' guardian.

Peaches has just turned eighteen after a successful season in vaudeville following her brief romance with Daddy Browning. Her birthday was last Saturday.

The Browning estate, a share of which Peaches is determined to have runs into several millions.

While the legal action was getting underway today, Peaches was in a hospital in Mansfield, Ohio, recovering from an automobile accident suffered while enroute from Cincinnati to Canton last Sunday. Her mother also suffered slight bruises.

The Theater

Holbrook Blinn, 56, stage and screen actor and producer who died at his New York home Sunday, began his stage career at the age of six years in "The Streets of New York."

Blinn's mother was Ruth Benson Blinn and he gravitated to the stage early in life. At twenty-one he played the part of Corporal Ferry in "The New South," and was later made leading man for Effie Ellsler and Roland Reed. He made a success of his London appearance in "The Cat and the Cherub."

* * *

Returning to America, he played in "To Have and To Hold" and "The Battle of the Strong." He was leading man for three seasons of Minnie Maddern Fiske in "Salvation Nell," "Becky Sharp," "Hannelle" and a number of other plays. He then organized the Princess Theater in New York and produced thirty one-act plays. He toured the country with these plays with Blanche Bates. He starred in "The Challenger" in 1919-20 and with Mary Nash in "Man and Woman" in 1920 and later in "The Bad Man," 1920-23. He entered the movies in 1923 and starred with Norma Talmadge in "The Dove." His last stage appearance was in "The Play's The Thing."

* * *

Wallace Beery, Richard Arlen and Louise Brooks are principals in "Beggars of Life," now in production, based on Jim Tully's famous story of hobo life.

HARMONY PLATFORM, EARLY NOMINATION, COAL OF CONVENTION

ally obligated to wage a fight because of the instructions given the Texas delegation by the state convention. He will be supported by a number of southern leaders, among them Josephus Daniels, who, as secretary of the navy during the Wilson administration, dried up the navy. Daniels takes the position that any evasion on the prohibition question would injure the party in years to come.

A moist plank or even an evasive plank," he said today, "would be ruinous. It would take us fifty years to regain the position we have held in the past. It would mean a permanent loss to the Democratic party of all the dry states. It would be positively fatal. If an effort is made to put in a wet plank we'll stay here all summer and fight it."

Inasmuch as the Smith leaders, such as Frank Hague, of New Jersey, Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and George Brennan of Illinois, have abandoned any idea of fighting for a wet plank—if they ever really entertained the notion—Daniels' threat to "stay here all summer and fight it" seemed superfluous.

Only on one other plank in the platform did there appear to be much debate. That is on farm relief. Most of the southerners in congress voted for the McNary-Haugen bill and hence it is likely that this convention will take considerably stronger stand for the farmer than did the Republicans at Kansas City. The farm people who unsuccessfully tried to crash the Kansas City convention are here in force, making good their threat that they would come to Houston if turned down at Kansas City. They have been welcomed with open arms to this hot, swarming city.

"Give us a dry plank and a real farm plank and we will win this election," said Sen. William J. Harris of Georgia. His opinion reflected the general opinion of southern leaders on the ground here.

Whether there will be a first ballot nomination of Governor Smith depends upon the action of several favorite sons—principally Pomerene in Ohio, Woollen in Indiana and Ayres in Kansas.

The Ohio caucus resulted in a decision to support Pomerene on the first ballot but on the second the forty-eight delegates will go forty-two for Smith and six for Reed. Before balloting time begins, however, it is possible the plan to vote for Pomerene will be abandoned.

Eighteen of Woollen's votes in the Indiana will be tallied for Smith on the second ballot, if not on the first, according to the delegation leaders.

COUZENS CLAIMING SENATE IMMUNITY

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Pleading senatorial immunity, Senator Couzens (R) of Michigan, today had before the district Supreme Court a motion to dismiss a libel suit for $500,000 filed against him by H. P. Cochrane, a tax expert.

Cochrane asserted that Couzens made slanderous statements relative to his business methods.

NEW YORKERS NOT THRILLED BY BROWN DERBY

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26—The Al Smith "brown derby" splashed into the convention maelstrom today, creating excitement among everybody but the New York delegation.

Young Texans grabbed for the derbies when the venders brought them out in the wake of the arrival of Smith's own cohorts.

Other delegates started or cheered, but still the New Yorkers didn't.

Indeed, the entire Tammany delegation seemed to step out of the character assigned to it by long tradition.

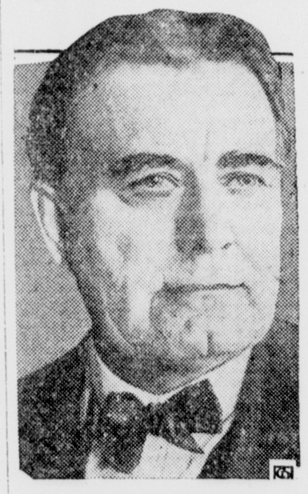
A Texas band played "Sidewalks of New York" with vim, but the Gothamites didn't even enthuse over it.

In all the eddies of the convention with emblematic donkies, "official" canes, all kinds of souvenirs and all kinds of songs being sold and sung, the New Yorkers displayed littel interest.

The delegates coming for excitement were disappointed and the Texans were amazed.

But the Manhattan cohorts were living up to their promise to bring the most somber delegation of all to Houston and keep it that way—until after "A" Smith is nominated.

Cabinet Possibility



Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, is being mentioned as the next secretary of state should Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, win the November election.

RESTLESS LOVE

© By Samuel Merwin 1928
RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Ackland Center, a little old town in New England, is proud of its beauty and traditions. But the modern world is fast crowding in on its peace. Finally a notorious roadhouse, Jazzland, is opened by a gang of bootleggers. Liquor flows. Girls of the town are lured there. Editor Hamilton Pew of "The Weekly Age" fights Jazzland, and is shot to death, the identity of his assailants never being ascertained. Homer Pew, his brother, takes up the fight in the newspaper. Stella Bagot, a home-town girl who has made good in New York as a magazine writer, comes homes to write about the fight against the gang. She is driven to Ackland by Ernie Hallam, a married man, much in love with her. He wants her to meet him in Boston. Homer tells Stella how his brother was shot down at Jazzland.

Joe Harmer, Ackland's political boss, calls on Homer to find out if he is going to keep on with the paper, now that his brother is gone.

Homer is called to the phone and hears the same mysterious voice that warned his brother to give up the fight against Jazzland. He endeavors to trace the call.

Homer is beat up that night when he puts his car in the garage at home. Stella races to his side.

Stella writes a sizzling editorial for the paper upon the attack.

Later that night she wearily gets into the Ford and returns to her home up the state road.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII

She drove in and put the car up, rolling the barn door to as quietly as she could. Weakly, then, she leaned against it and looked about. How quietly the old place felt. She lifted her eyes and stared at a patch of velvet sky between the overhanging elms. The stars were cold and seemed a long way off. Another sudden wild thought came, a still more unsettling thought: "What if I should go and fall idiotically in love with that thoroughbred boy? I might. Those things happen. He wouldn't look at a Bagot, of course. Not here in Ackland. I'd have to be in New York to impress him. He'd just be decent. And God knows what would become of me!"

A sob shook her. This wouldn't do at all. What was the matter with her! She stood erect and breathed deeply of the night air. She simply must get some sort of hold on herself. If she was to sleep, even.

A car stopped out on the road. She could hear low voices. Were they after her, too? Well, what of it? Action, even danger, would bring relief of a sort. Homer wasn't cowed. He wasn't even nerving himself up; just casually, rather wonderfully, going straight ahead. She'd hit on the precise word thoroughbred. That's what he was.

Out there on the road somebody was trying to shut a car door softly. She could hear that. Then the machine drove away. She walked deliberately behind the lilacs toward the porch. Not quite casually, as Homer would have done. He'd simply not be thinking of himself at all. She couldn't help thinking of herself.

The path led by the shed, past the open arch where cords of wood were always neatly piled. A figure stood in the shadow of the arch. Stella stopped short. The figure began climbing; reaching up and catching the ends of slightly projecting sticks. Then she saw that it was a girl. She moved forward.

"Martha!"

The girl dropped to the ground. "Stella! My word, but you scared me!"

"You don't have to climb up there. The front door was left open for me."

"Oh, but I do. You see, my door's locked on the inside."

"You can get through my room to the roof of the shed."

This was reasonable. They moved slowly toward the porch. Stella said: "Sit down a minute. They can't hear us out here."

Side by side, on the top step, they fell silent. Then Stella asked: "What are you up to, anyway?"

"Well.....you have to have a little fun."

"It's all hours."

"Oh, yes. It's late."

"You know how the folks would feel."

"Well.....oh, they don't understand! You know that."

"It isn't exactly square."

"Well.....How about you? You're pretty late yourself."

"I've been helping down at the Age office. Homer Pew was pretty badly beaten up tonight by that Jazzland crowd. We had to stop the presses and get the story in."

Martha's breath seemed to catch. She glanced swiftly at this handsome, quietly young woman who was so completely the elder sister; then turned as swiftly away.

"You've been drinking, Martha."

"Not much. I never take much."

"On the loose, aren't you? Hm! I'll admit it's rather a shock. I suppose you've been off dancing somewhere."

"Yes, I have." Then hotly: "I don't see that you're in a position to talk. You went away. And you know well enough you just about broke their hearts doing it. I suppose you never drink anything yourself."

"Oh, come, Martha!" She'd have to say something. The girl saw it all wrong. She herself had never run wild, flapper fashion. Quietly, guardedly, she went on: "I went to college, Martha. I worked harder than you have any idea of. And then when I got to New York I took a responsible job."

"That's all very well. There you are, down in New York, living your own life. How do we know what you do?"

Stella sighed. "Of course," she said, "there's no good in sitting here quarreling. We'd better go to bed."

"You're not fair, Stella. They've kept me home here. It's been like a prison. Doing housework and tending the stand. Never any fun. They've taken it out of me to balance up for what you did to them. Oh, don't think I can't see it! I'm wise! Well, they've got only themselves to blame."

"What do you mean by that?"

"It started right here. Because they kept me home. Mother made me go out to the stand one day when I didn't want to. I was reading. A good book." This with a touch of bitter mockery. "Mother was visiting with Mrs. Shirlaw. So I did as I was told. It was this boy and a friend of his. In a swell car. They bought all the strawberries. But that wasn't what they wanted. They wanted me. They'd heard about me from another fellow who drives along this road.....Well, I'm going up."

"You'll find a box of candy on the hall table. Take it along."

"Oh.....thanks, Stella. Well, I'll say good morning. Are you going to tell on me?"

"No. But I can't promise not to do some thinking about you. I'm afraid your point of view is all wrong, Martha."

"Perhaps." The girl rose, gave her a defiant look, then tiptoed into the house.

Stella sat alone. There was drama, even potential tragedy, in the flippant outbreak of this eighteen-year-old. It was a stab at the home their parents had labored for half a life-time to build and hold together. True enough, she herself, had given it the first stab. But she'd been, at least, earnest in her own flight. Whatever had developed since, in the way of personal entanglements, had been pretty inevitable. Really the sort of problems that might present themselves to any attractive girl who had her own way to make. But however you figured it, there wasn't much left of that home. Just a place; and an aging couple; and illusion.

Her thoughts kept flitting back to the Pews. Those crisp editorials of Young Ham's came to mind. Here was his main thesis to the life; not only the village invaded by that pressing outside world, but the home itself. You couldn't protect girls in the home. Not any more. With jazz pouring provocatively in over the radio and "swell" cars stopping at the door.

She dragged herself up to her room. Something had to be done about Ernest. Some course thought out. He seemed a curiously remote figure. But he'd be waiting, from ten to eleven, for her voice.

She couldn't think it out. Not now. So she wrote on a sheet of paper: "Please wake me at ten—" and pinned it on the outside of the door. She'd have to allow time to dress and get down to the center. Call him from a booth at Breckeridge's. It would never do to talk with him over the house telephone. Mother would be hovering, and would worry if she shut herself in to talk.

PEACHES BROWNING AGAIN IN COURT; WANTS DOWER RIGHTS

NEW YORK, June 26.—Peaches and Daddy are in court again. The youthful Frances Heenan Browning, who is still a minor although two years have passed since her romance with the elderly Browning, has started a fight for her dower rights.

Through her attorney, former Surrugate Daniel F. Cohalon, Peaches today applied to Supreme Court Justice Lyden for the appointment of her mother Carolyn M. Heenan as (guardian ad litum).

Mrs. Heenan was appointed by Justice Lyden as Peaches' guardian.

Peaches has just turned eighteen after a successful season in vaudeville following her brief romance with Daddy Browning. Her birthday was last Saturday.

The Browning estate, a share of which Peaches is determined to have runs into several millions.

While the legal action was getting underway today, Peaches was in a hospital in Mansfield, Ohio, recovering from an automobile accident suffered while enroute from Cincinnati to Canton last Sunday. Her mother also suffered slight bruises.

OTEY NOW AT HOUSTON

Village Marshal Sleeps In Hammock; He Hopes It Won't Rain.

By MARSHAL OTEY WALKER
Special Central Press Correspondent for The Gazette and Delegate to the Democratic Convention.

HOUSTON, Tex., June 26.—Now let the news happen—I'm here, all set to help the Democrats pick a president and to get the news to the readers of THE GAZETTE.

I hope I like Houston as well as I did Kansas City. Up there they gave me an elephant button, which got me into places. But I'm not wearing it now. I don't want them to take me for a spy.

The first thing I did on arriving here was to look for a place to sleep. I've found a swell place, and it isn't on a billiard table, either.

I got to Kansas City late and had to do my dozing on one of those cigar store gymnasiums between two foreigners from St. Louis, who were more fragrant than friendly. Nothing like that here. I'm holding down a swell hammock between two palm trees in somebody's bacy yard. I hope it doesn't rain.

In this town they talk about the cool breezes from the gulf at night even in the hottest weather, Jesse Jones, the skyline, the ship channel and what a large state Texas is—if you have to walk it (even when not taking any drinks).

I'm not going to start attending conferences until tomorrow, as not many of the candidates know yet that I have arrived. I have brought along a thermos bottle full of strong, black coffee and a sack of mints. I find that these things are very handy to have after a really good conference. I'm not like some people who believe in sleeping off a conference with a bag of ice on their heads. I curt a conference at its source.

Speaking of conferences, I saw two people with their heads together in a hotel lobby talking in undertones. From the back they looked just like Al Smith and Jim Reed.

I sneaked up behind to listen. If these two men were talking compromise it would have been the biggest news story since the Old Home Town won the county croquet championship.

But I was disappointed. It was only two colored bell boys discussing the tip situation, which seems to be booming. The boys said that everybody at this convention must be afraid of becoming bald-headed, so many of them send down for hair tonic.

I almost forgot to mention a fox paw which I made. When I heard this convention was going to be in Texas I rented a cowboy outfit so I wouldn't be funny by wearing regular clothes.

Well, I put on my cattle suit today and went down town. Everyone else had on American clothes. I felt as conspicuous as a scot spot on a movie star's nose.

I'm certainly glad that the convention wasn't held at Atlantic City. Then I might have made a serious error.

SPEEDER IN RACE WITH ROAD OFFICER

In an auto race with C. J. Phillips, a Montgomery County deputy sheriff, on the Dayton Pike Sunday, Duane Hatfield, of R. R. No. 2, Xenia, came off second best.

Hatfield unfortunately did not know Phillips was a deputy sheriff when he went around him in his auto. The deputy pursued him and Hatfield, trying to get away, was caught traveling, it is alleged, sixty miles an hour. Hatfield was booked on a speednig charge.
